JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon would a-bomb Vietnam – If; one 'China Hand' FBI won't probe; Navy links long hair and laziness

Food Program In Trouble

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) — The painful history of the surplus commodity program in Missouri got a new headache Thursday.

Gov. Warren E. Hernes signed into law last month a provision for the state to relieve counties of administration costs. But the money for the program which became effective April 1 is tied up in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Without the emergency money, about $200,000 to last through June county courts are wondering what happens now.

Rep. E. J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, House appropriations chairman, said he fears "counties no longer have the legislative authority to pay their share" because of the wording of the new law.

Rep. Joe D. Holt, D-Fulton, a member of the House appropriations committee, agreed.

"If the Senate does not approve the funding,' Holt said, "under the bill enacted, the entire program in every county must grind to a halt."

Meanwhile, Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter said a letter went out Monday over his signature to 104 counties notifying county courts they are relieved of all responsibilities of local administration costs under the newly-enacted law.

Carter predicts that without Senate approval of the pending emergency money, already approved by the House, "the situation will be chaos."

Holt said the new law provides that the surplus foods program may be funded by the county and state with the county putting up no more than 15 per cent if it so chooses.

That option, he said, is lost in further restricting language which says the state must put up 85 per cent added to federal money. Without state money, there is no program.

Cantrell said he is also worried about the aid to dependent children money in the emergency money bill.

He said "These are the people who rely on surplus food to live. They'll be hit from two sides" without the Senate's approval of the money bill, he predicts.

Total Employment Is Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The total number of Americans with jobs posted the largest gain in March in nearly five years and the rise in wholesale prices slowed sharply, the government reported today.

Wholesale prices are generally indicators of later developments in retail consumer costs.

The report that total employment rose 620,000 to 81.2 million and that wholesale prices of food and industrial raw materials increased a modest onetenth of one per cent indicated more favorable developments for President Nixon to defend his economic policies.

The reports by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics also said that the nation's unemployment rate edged up from 5.7 to 5.9 per cent last month, but this was due to seasonal factors and the actual number of jobless edged down some 200,000 to 5.2 million.

The report on wholesale prices included the news that farm products and processed foods declined four-tenths of one per cent in March after several months of sharp increases.

M.U. President Arrested

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, president of the University of Missouri, was arrested here Thursday night and charged with driving while intoxicated.

The arrest followed a minor two-car collision in which no one was injured.

Ratchford, 51, was released on $250 bond. A hearing was set for April 14 in Boone County Magistrate Court.

Fourth Street Cleans Up

Residents of the 4th Street area, ordered to clean up their property because it was harboring rats, have done just that, according to the Scott County Health Department.

In a letter to Bill Whitlock, from health investigator Warren Manning, Manning said the clean up "should greatly alleviate the problem of rats and vermin in the immediate area."

He said a few lots still contained some lumber, junk, and garbage, which will provide harborage for the rodents. "However," Manning said, "if garbage is stored properly, we feel the rats will not remain in the area."

The health department investigated the area in February at the request of the Daily Standard. A resident of the area told the Daily Standard that rats had entered his home from a nearby junk pile owned by Collins Construction Co.

The health department investigation showed the rat's home was not in the construction company's dump, but rather in the neighborhood junk piles.

Whitlock sent the residents a letter telling them to clean up the area, and both the city and the health department feel they have complied with the order.

Car Rams Truck on I-55

A St. Louis man was slightly injured about 11:30 p.m. yesterday when his car rammed the rear of a Mack Truck on the north New Madrid interchange of Interstate 55, according to the highway patrol.

Joseph Young, 44, was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital with head cuts. The truck was driven by Phillip Higgins, 25 of Memphis.

Sharon Hart, 22, of Advance was taken to Dexter Hospital with cuts and bruises yesterday after a collision at 4:45 p.m. in Advance.

Reds Open Fourth Front

SAIGON (AP) - North Vietnamese troops captured a district town 75 miles north of Saigon today and opened a fourth front in their nine-day old offensive with more than a dozen attacks on towns and bases in the Mekong Delta to the south.

U.S. warplanes meanwhile hammered North Vietnamese forces in North and South Vietnam and neighboring stretches of Laos with more than 600 strikes. Two Navy fighter-bombers and a big rescue helicopter were shot down, the U.S. Command said, and six Americans were missing.

The district town of LocNinh fell after fighting so close that an air spotter overhead reported the defending South Vietnamese were calling artillery fire in on their own positions.

The spotter reported eight to ten North Vietnamese tanks attacking the town, and later the South Vietnamese command announced that Loc Ninh was abandoned during the morning after four days of heavy attack.

The Viet Cong radio claimed that the South Vietnamese garrison surrendered after Communist forces killed, wounded or captured 400 of the defenders. But Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the chief spokesman for the Saigon command, said the government troops "moved out to an area outside the city."

Casualties on both sides were reported heavy.

Government forces also abandoned Fire Base Hung Tam, five miles southwest of Loc Ninh and 10 miles below the Cambodian border, to the enemy.

Field reports said elements of four North Vietnamese divisions had crossed the Cambodian border in force and penetrated at least 20 miles into South Vietnamese territory.

Small enemy units slipped to within 20 miles of Saigon and damaged a bridge on Highway 13, the north-south road from the border. A bypass was being used.

Enemy forces were reported to have cut the highway temporarily in nine places south of An Loc. the capital of Binh Long Province 60 miles north of Saigon. Government troops were making sweeps in an effort to keep the route open to supply convoys.

An Loc itself was threatened, and positions all around it were under rocket and mortor attack. But the Saigon command said the government still held the town.

Few details were known of the attacks in the Mekong Delta, but the command said 40 of the enemy and 10 government troops were killed and 23 government men were wounded.

The threat to Saigon was not considered immediate, senior officers said, but the urgent need for reinforcements drained the capital region of its reserve forces.

Dexter Painter Fought As Kid to Get Coin for Colors

By PAM HORTON

DEXTER — What began as a hobby for John Latimore, has become a source of extra income.

"I began drawing when I was five or six at Charleston" he said. "My weaknesses even at this early age were cussing and fighting. My parents were poor but my dad had managed to buy me a pair of boxing gloves and every Sunday I would go down to the old blacksmith shop and the drunks would usually give me a quarter or 50 cents to either fight some kid or draw a picture for them. I then took this money to buy my crayolas. Actually I'm really a very docile person, but I guess you could say I needed water colors and was willing to fight for them."

"Art developed over a period of years as a hobby and as something I enjoyed doing. But I guess it's past that point now. Now I don't always paint what I want to paint but what I know will sell to support my hobby."

Latimore lived in Charleston 33 years where he was employed by Missouri Utilities. He transferred to Dexter, where he and his wife and two daughters have lived five years.

"I quit school at Charleston when I was 17 to enter the army," he recalled.

Although he had the opportunity to attend three colleges on foot ball scholarships, he turned them down feeling school wasn't for him. So as far as any training in art, Latimore has developed his skill by trial and error.

To him probably one of the most depressing facets of art today is that it is losing authenticity.

"People suffer tremendously by allowing a reprint for $12.95 in their home instead of an original," he said. "Authenticity is being lost in America in everything, even down to the ability to visit."

Latimore works in charcoals, oil, and water colors. He states that "my wife, Carolyn, is my worst critic. I always ask her for advice in my color schemes."

"I don't like to paint people as I feel I can't duplicate skin tones." He recalls being asked to paint a baptistry scene for the small Klines Island Baptist Church near Bloomfield.

The pastor had estimated costs from others ranging from $450 to $900. "I painted the scene for $100. I remember getting down on my knees and asking God to help me. I finished the painting in only 16 hours.

"What do I see for myself after retirement? Probably a painting preacher. I would like for us to buy a camper and travel around the country preaching in small churches that have financial difficulties.

"This explains in itself my philosophy, that life is a quest for happiness and I am convinced that there is no happiness in a life outside of Christ."

NEW MADRID — City Marshal O. E. Householder Thursday resigned two days after being re-elected for a two-year term. He was serving his 18th year as city marshal, and said he was leaving the city when he resigned.

City attorney Hal E. Hunter, Jr., at a council meeting Thursday night advised the board that Householder's resignation only covered the unexpired three weeks remaining in his present terms, which ends May 1, as newly-elected officers will not be sworn in before that time.

Fire gutted a storage building about 4:30 p.m. yesterday behind the James Moore III residence at 412 North Kingshighway. Firemen, who fought the blaze for an hour, said it was started by burning trash.

At 5:50 a.m. today, firemen were called to the intersection of South Kingshighway and route 61 when a Missouri Utilities high-voltage line fell. No fire resulted.

Paducah Man Slaying Victim

DEXTER — Stoddard County Coroner Ray Rainey said early today a man found March 26 in a Stoddard County drainage ditch has been identified tentatively as Joseph Harry Mahan, 63, of the Paducah area. Ivan Briggs, a Canalou resident, discovered the man's partially- clothed body near Charter Oak, south of here, floating face up in three feet of water.

He had suffered a probable fractured skull, and his hands and feet were bound.

A bloody sheet was found near the body. Rainey said he felt the man had been killed somewhere else and dumped into the ditch.

Paducah detectives apparently stumbled onto the identification through records on Mahan dating back to 1932.

A SOCIAL CONTRACT:
THE MANAGEMENT OF CHANGE

Effective response to social change is possibly the most demanding challenge for all of us in the 20th Century.

Many aspects of American life are under attack. On the business side, profit is suspect. The concept of rising standards of living, once known as progress, is today all too often labeled "false" or "crass" materialism. The utilization of nature's resources is regarded by many as ecological destruction. Technology is charged with being the enemy of human values. Size achieved through efficiency is considered somehow illegal and immoral.

In accepting the responsibilities of its social contract — to furnish to the consumer the goods and services he wants at a satisfactory return to owner-investors — industry has depended upon the general public and the government to provide a reasonably harmonious atmosphere in which to produce and distribute its products and services.

A changing value structure, however, materially affects the social contract under which American companies historically have functioned. That's why management in these troubled times must choose to manage change and not to become its victim.

Typical of the new breed at the top of American business are the men running American Can Company. Under the guidance of Chairman of the Board and President William F. May, American Can — itself an American institution — has accepted as a major management responsibility the function of listening and responding to "what the public is trying to tell us about ourselves and about themselves. Management must also satisfy the legitimate needs of three participating partners — its customers, its owners and its employees — and strike a balance that is fair to all three."

This, according, to Mr. May in the company's 1971 annual report, explains "our continuing and expanded efforts in litter and pollution control, our individual and inter-industry participation in projecting the new industry of resource recovery, our enlarged listening posts in government relations, and our preoccupation with the intricate human interactions generally termed public affairs."

The top management at American Cans probes into these areas, not simply for intellectual stimulus, but for guidelines to the successful management of change itself! We relate to this kind of enterprise. No company or institution can stand apart from these conditions without disaster. Change is a fact.

We're all in this ball game together.

Choice, U. S. Good and U. S. Standard. U. S. Choice and Good are the grades most often seen in supermarkets. U. S. Prime usually goes to restaurants and lower grades generally go to processors.

LATIN PROBLEMS

The second regular session of the General Assembly of the Organization of American States opens in Washington Tuesday, April 11. Foreign ministers and other representatives of the 23 member-nations will consider a 37-item agenda dealing with political, social and economic problems in the hemisphere and with administrative and budgetary matters affecting OAS operations. The General Assembly will convene three days before Pan American Day on Friday, April 14, marking the founding of the first regional organization in the hemisphere in 1890.

The special relationship between the U. S. and Latin America that led to the founding of the OAS and earlier Pan-American organizations still exists, but it is not the same. "It should surprise no one -- least of all foreign business interests -- that this continent ... is experiencing an upsurge of economic nationalism,' Galo Plaza, Secretary General of the OAS, told a gathering of the nation's governors last fall. Nationalization of large corporations has become so common that most U. S. investors regard it as a calculated business risk.

Latin America is looking for a new deal in trade. Its number one priority is the implementation of generalized tariff preferences which would eliminate tariffs on many manufactured goods produced in the less developed countries. The program would encourage Latin Americans to diversify their economics and ease them out of the unfavorable position of exchanging raw materials for manufactured goods. The U. S. has failed to live up to its promise to implement these tariff preferences. Administration officials blame the delay in submitting the legislation on the current balance of payments crisis and the protectionists sentiment in Congress.

While anxious to reduce or eliminate foreign influence in their countries, Latin American officials recognize the need for outside capital and technology. In response to Latin American desires, foreign assistance increasingly is being channeled through such multilateral organizations as the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank. Latin Americans welcome foreign aid, but they insist on setting their own priorities for its use.

A STEP TOWARD
WORLDWIDE STRIKES

Many unions have the word "international" in their names but are really no more international than the World Series is a world series.

The last decade or so, however, has seen the emergence of truly international business in the form of "multinational" companies which, for some union leaders, have replaced the Taft-Hartley Law as a stock subject for denunciation.

Now, for the first time, two international federations of trade unions are taking on a multinational company on its own terms, reports Chemical & Engineering News.

Officials of the ICF (International Federation of Chemical and General Workers' Unions) and the IUF (International Union for Food and Allied Workers' Associations) have met in Geneva, Switzerland, to chart a plan of action in representing workers in chemicals, foods and beverages and to coordinate such common interests as hours, working conditions, income, health and safety and so on.

The immediate target is W. R. Grace & Co. of New York, but others on the list include such multinational giants as DuPont, Imperial Chemical Industries and Dow.

One of the first things ICF/IUF officials hope to accomplish is to harmonize contract renewal date for workers throughout company — which means throughout the world.

I they are successful, it will raise for the first time in history the possibility of such a thing as a worldwide strike.

"Consumers are saving because they are scared. With unemployment high and business sluggish, we all feel economically insecure, so we save. Obviously, if we cannot induce consumers to provide the push toward recovery, then we must try to stimulate business. Increased business activity should provide jobs for the unemployed. When unemployment drops, consumer confidence will return and consumers will spend again, further stimulating the economy. The key to recovery, therefore, is business, not the consumer." -- Mr. Arch N. Booth, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — The king of the African jungle is footloose in Brazil, entertaining hundreds who pay $5 to mingle with His Majesty in a natural habitat.

Cars lined up for miles on a recent opening Sunday to get a chance to drive through 120,000 square yards of open forest housing 23 free-roaming lions.

The "Simba Safari," lion park, first on this continent, was an instant hit in Latin America's largest city.

The lions are confined only by two 20-foot-high wire fences which encircle the park, but otherwise are free to walk along the 1.8 miles of paved road used by the visitors, or to simply lie in the forest.

"I visited many parks throughout the world," said Francisco "Chico" Galvao, originator of the $180,000 project here.

"This is the eighth. And from what I could gather, ours is the prettiest both in terms of vegetation and geography. The park in the United States is situated in a desert. In the others vegetation is scarce, relying mostly on eucalyptus trees. And there's another thing: This park is the first one in which the lions are put together. In the others they are kept apart."

Galvao and three other Brazilian outdoorsmen and hunters brought the lions to their new home on a 3,400-foot inland plateau on the Tropic of Capricorn. Eventually, 50 lions will occupy the park situated on land purchased from the nearby Sao Paulo Zoo. Most will have been brought from other zoos in Africa or Latin America.

Visitors to the park must ride in cars. They pay the equivalent of just under $1 per person to see the lions from one of the park's zebra-stripped Jeeps or almost $5 to ride through in their own cars. There is no limit on how many persons may be inside.

Car windows must be closed at all times, although the lions appear generally tame and have been trained to become accustomed to cars. Hornblowing is prohibited.

All along the road, park security rangers remain on alert, armed with rifles that shoot anaesthetic pellets in the case of attacks. The pellets can put an attacking lion to sleep without hurting him.

In spite of the obvious need for safety precautions, some visitors were somewhat let down upon learning a littleknown fact: Lions cry.

Samson, Leonard and Simon, the first beasts set free in the park, cuddled up to the closed gates and began crying on their first night of freedom in Brazil.

The reason?

"They got scared," Chico Galvao said. "They began to miss people."

Employers are faced with two special drug abuse problems — not hiring a drug user and what to do with an employee user. Both are equally complex, but sufficiently different to be considered separately. First, the applicant.

Elaborate detection systems, urinalysis, lie detector, tests, police records, and stereotypes have limited value in screening an applicant. They short-circuit good personnel procedures and substitute for common sense. An applicant should be interviewed professionally on qualifications and examined medically. These two functions are related but not exclusively dependent on the other.

One company's pre-employment medical exam provided these observations to its personnel department:

CASE 1 -- Twenty-year old applicant for position of porter used marijuana while in service in Vietnam; accepted from a medical standpoint for this position;

CASE 2 -- Applicant for service station trainee, currently on methadone treatment for past two years; upon receipt of an appropriate certification from the treatment center, applicant employable from a medical standpoint for this position;

CASE 3 -- Applicant for truck driver had been a regular user of heroin, but stated that he had been off the stuff for the past five months; advised rejection of this applicant because of nature of this occupation and lack of treatment certification.

These are one company's guidelines, but not rules. They might be helpful to you in pre-employment situations.

WE THE PEOPLE
LOST THE WAR

If history finds that the United States lost a war for the first time in Vietnam, that war will have been lost by we, the people.

Our military didn't lose it. They won every battle they fought.

And they should have.

We had total control of the air and the sea; we had far superior weapons including that most important weapon of all — the soldier.

The American GI is the best soldier in the world.

Again, he has not lost a war, unless, of course, history finds that we lost the Vietnam war. And even then, the GI didn't lose it.

No, the people lost that war — the people here at home.

And don't think for a minute that we, the civilians in a war, can't lose a war.

Mao said what all top military leaders have said over and over down through history.

In his little red book Mao said:

"Weapons are an important factor in war, but not the decisive factor; it is people, not things, that are decisive. The contest of strength is not only a contest of military and economic power, but also a contest of human power and morale. Military and economic power is necessarily wielded by people."

What happened to the United States in this war is that our leaders made a judgment that our military should not be permitted to go ahead and win the war. Their reason sounded good and, perhaps, was good. Their reason was fear that the Red Chinese would enter the war if we won it by bombing out North Vietnam and closing their one harbor, which of course, our military could have done.

So, instead of winning, we let the war seep along its bloody path for years upon years. Finally, our leaders were unable to keep the people in line any longer. It was then that the anti-war elements grew in strength. Finally, we the people caved in. Our leaders had to pull our troops out as we are now doing.

Maybe we are pulling out with dignity. Maybe the communists will not now be able to take over South Vietnam, and thus, win the war. Maybe...

Meanwhile, the rest of the world is asking a question about us they never asked before:

Have the American people turned soft? Have the American people weakened? Are the American people no longer able to fight and win?

If history is prologue, sooner or later some powerful enemy of the United States will test us — the American people.

...Because, as Mao put it... "People, not things, are decisive..." — Mexico Ledger.

NO TAX MONEY FOR ILLEGAL BILLBOARD
REMOVAL

Monroe Countians, and we believe, most other Missourians, are against the proposal that would allow the use of tax money for removal of billboards that have been illegally erected in violation of Missouri State laws.

Expressions heard locally are to the effect that this would be like paying the expenses of any other criminal whose illegal acts had put him in a place where he would have to incur some expense in order to undo what he had done in violation of a law.

How ridiculous can some of our legislators be?

Whoever heard of using tax dollars to pay a criminal for his illegal acts?

The billboard companies knew they were erecting those signs illegally when they did so.

They should bear the financial consequences. — Paris Appeal.

INSTITUTIONS TO REPLACE FAMILIES?

The defeat of legislation to set up federally-financed "child development" centers for children below school age was a victory for the fanily in our country. Yet the enemies of the family have not yet given up. The attack on the family continues in many different areas.

Recently Roger Freeman, a senior staff member of the Hoover Institution and a former special assistant to President Nixon, made the frightening proposal that children might be better off if taken away from mothers who were receiving welfare and placed in government institutions.

Said Mr. Freeman: "Maybe we should consider whether a child is always best off with his mother, or whether growing-up in a well-run institution may not give it a better chance in life than living under inferior parental care or in a detrimental environment."

The notion that government institutions could provide a better upbringing for children than a family is completely contrary to everything that our country has stood for. For years we have worked to remove children from institutions and put them into homes, yet Mr. Freeman wants to reverse these efforts.

Some people might support these proposals on the grounds that they only affect people receiving welfare. Yet this point of view holds that the government has the right to take children away from their parents and put them into institutions under some circumstances. It would not be long before the government would assume the power to decide whether any parent was fi' to raise his child. Such proposals are perfectly at home in a totalitarian state. They have no place in a free country. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Kennedy Hits the Road: labor sees 'Ted' as positively 'On the Ticket'

WASHINGTON — With the Wisconsin primaries over, a small Congressional committee on Secret Service protection of Presidential candidates will meet and decide who is still viable, how many agents shall be assigned and exactly what their jurisdiction is. But the most viable of all, with the possible exception of Alabama's Gov. George Wallace who will continue to travel with Federal guards, will not be considered because he--Ted Kennedy-- still doesn't want "in."

But in the highest political circles -- and this means Richard Nixon and AFL—CIO George Meany -- the belief is that he is in as certain as the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. In fact, the labor chief is quoted by one intimate as saying positively that "Ted will be on the ticket."

Meany and Mr. Nixon aren't political meteorologists for sensationalist TV weathermen. The two leaders know the political climate, they don't guess. Perhaps the only ambiguous note is Meany's phrase, "on the ticket." Could be he means the 40 -year-old Senior Senator from Massachusetts may be talked into taking second place with a centrist to Pied Piper in the youth, the angry black political convention forces, the ultras and those who've never abandoned the Kennedy cult.

But it is certain Ted Kennedy is hitting the road, rounding the speaking circuit and, as he did in an interview last Monday, is less and less sharp in his denials that he'll job into the Presidential race.

His speeches should not be taken out of context. Nor should his audiences. But they are singularly meaningful. For example, on the afternoon of April 25, Ted Kennedy as did his brothers before him, will stand before thousands of cheering delegates at the independent United Auto Workers' 23rd Constitutional Convention in Atlantic City, N.J.

It will be his kind of audience -- left of center, highly politicalized, jammed with young delegates, and scheduled to hear Congress's ultra-leftist and lady infighter, New York's Bella Abzug, farm workers' leader Cesar Chavez, and the last of the Reuther brothers, the most radical of them all, Victor Reuther, in his farewell speech.

For Kennedy, who will talk of national health insurance, the open road then will twist back to Washington as, in the next 60 days, he speaks to legislative conferences here of the United Rubber Workers, the Communications Workers, the United Steelworkers, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and probably the International Union of Electrical Workers -- all militant and politicalized AFL-CIO unions.

In a sense, this is what Bobby Kennedy did. Once when I was lunching with Dick Nixon back in '67, I listened carefully to plain citizen Nixon carefully analyze this strategy:

In effect, Nixon said, Bob Kennedy was putting himself in position to move in and seize the Presidential nomination if anything happened to Lyndon Johnson. Which is exactly what happened.

It was during the few months just before the lethal grimness in the Los Angeles hotel kitchen that President Johnson told George Meany he would fly to the 1968 convention if he thought there was any "danger" that "Bobby" would get the nomination.

I do believe Mr. Johnson and his Texan alter ego, Treasury Secretary John Connally, would move swiftly to shunt Ted Kennedy aside should there be "any danger" of his taking the nomination in Miami Beach. But last time Lyndon Johnson had Meany and the AFL—CIO with him all the way. Meany had his "personal" candidate.. Hubert Humphrey. But today Meany, powerful chief of the only viable pro-Democratic party machine thers is with money and manpower, the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, says he has no candidate.

He's still fond of "Hubert" whom labor feels it could have elected had the '68 campaign run "another three days." But HHH is vintage '68. Meany is reportedly fed up with Ed Muskie because of the Maine Senator's fight against labor's foreign policy the ABM, the SST, the Lockheed loan and the space shuttle, The word is, "We just don't know what happened to Ed. He had it and he lost it; how could we campaign for him?"

So Meany and Co. are not tying themselves to any Democratic candidate in the "yo-yo primaries." They feel there will positively be a conventional deadlock. Some feel that they may yet be able to bargain Washington's Sen. Scoop Jackson into second place. But the feeling in the highest labor circles is that Ted Kennedy will be the only Democrat not "tarnished" by the primaries. And the belief is, in circles which should know firsthand, that Meany feels it will be Kennedy, maybe Kennedy and Jackson, maybe Kennedy and Humphrey, perhaps even Humphrey and Kennedy.

But that Kennedy will be on the ticket there seems to be no doubt in labor headquarters' "Eighth Floor" -- meaning Meany's office.

That's the political weather outlook for today.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- If the communist offensive should threaten the orderly withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam, President Nixon is prepared to use nuclear weapons against the attackers.

We reported on March 1, 1971, that contingency plans had been drafted for nuclear warfare in Indochina. Competent sources stressed that nuclear weapons would be used only as a last resort if the President concluded there were no other way to save our boys.

We can now report that the contingency plans have been constantly revised and updated. Like pre-written newspaper obituaries, they are ready in case the dwindling U.S. forces should be pushed into a Dunkirk like corner.

The secret plans call for using "nukes" of different magnitude, depending on the targets. "An air blast or a ground blast" might be used, say our sources. This would be determined by how much we wanted to limit the destruction.

Our key sources, for their own protection, have asked us to withhold their identities. But a former sergeant, who worked on the contingency, not only has agreed to let us name him but has offered to testify before Congress on the nuclear targeting.

He is James Walkley, a former Air Force sergeant, who used to work on target planning at Hickman Field in Hawaii. His specialty was Laos.

TARGETING ROOM

The nuclear targeting, he told us, is done in "a special little room. You have to have an SI (Special Intelligence) clearance to get inside."

"I worked with the people, so I knew what they were doing," Walkley said. "With a nuke, you'd have to drop a certain type on a certain type of target."

The plans were constantly worked over, he said, although it sometimes seemed to him that the Air Force merely "wanted to keep the guys busy."

Walkley said he had provided target information to the nuclear experts, although his main job was targeting conventional bombing.

He could name others who labored over the nuclear contingency plans, he said, but couldn't guarantee they would testify.

Footnote: The former sergeant was kicked out of his top-secret job in 1970 after he became distressed with his target-planning role and began to work against the Vietnam War. He was court martialed but acquitted, and then given an honorable discharge.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Suspicious Travelers -- When Mrs. Helen Hays, a Chinese-American educator, traveled to China for a visit, the FBI began checking into her activities. The agents said it was "routine" for the FBI to look into all Visitors to China who were "suspected of being friendly with Communist China." At about the same time, another American visitor was expressing friendly feelings toward the Chinese Communists. However, the FBI presumably will not investigate President Nixon.

Barbour Cut -- The State Department secretly sought to get Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., to change a statement he made in closed session of a House committee studying the Mideast. Commenting on the abilities of Ambassador to Israel Walworth Barbour, Wolff remarked that "the job may be too much for Mr. Barbour." Disturbed, the State Department tried to get Wolff to soften or eliminate his criticism. But Wolff balked, and the statement will be printed as he gave it.

Laziness Standards -- Officials at a Navy medical dispensary in Norfolk, Va., claim to have found a connection between long hair and laziness. Failure to observe hair standards as spelled out by Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, wrote to dispensary officials, carries connotations of laziness, inattention to details, recalcitrance, or a lack of personal pride, real or affected." Now that's a real advance in scientific knowledge. The logical conclusion is that our longhaired forefathers must have been positively slothful. And most women, to use the Navy's logic, must be lazier than men.

Marks Plan -- Four years ago, Leonard Marks invited the leaders of Peking to send newsmen to the U.S. to cover the 1968 presidential campaign. He was then the U.S. Information Agency chief. Now as a lawyer in private practice, he is renewing the proposal. He believes it would be useful for the Chinese Communists "to see how Americans choose their President." The uncensored Chinese newscasts, he suggests, should be beamed into China on the Voice of America.

Humphrey's Women -- Senator Hubert Humphrey has instructed his campaign staff to "include more and more women in our organizational structure and in our plans." In a confidential memo, he declared: "I will condone no tokenism. In other words, we are not going to have just one woman for display in a top position, or one black or one youth. I believe in the invoivement of people on the basis of their ability. And since women have been so selectively excluded not only in government but in industry and academic life, it will be necessary to place extra emphasis upon the appointment and selection of women. The same applies to racial minorities."

Gimmick Helps People Defeat Snake Phobia

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) -- Show a cobra to a person afraid of snakes and he may pass out in fright - but perhaps not, if he's listening to someone else's heartbeat at the time.

Pennsylvania State University researchers say they have developed a psychological gimmick to help people overcome their phobias. The technique involves leading people to believe they are listening to their own heartbeat when they aren't, reports Dr. Robert Stern, associate psychology professor.

"False heartbeats are beginning to be used as a tool in actual therapy to help people get rid of deep - seated fears," said Stern.

In one experiment, students who feared snakes viewed slides of nearly every variety of snake while listening to what they thought were their own hearts amplified through a microphone attached to their chests.

Steele Prison Site Assured, Legislator Says

BRAGG CITY -- Steele now seems assured as the site for Missouri's proposed maximum security prison, according to Vic Downing, state Representative from Bragg City.

Downing said his optimism stems from House and partial Senate approval of an initial $500,000 appropriation for the planned multi- million- dollar penitentiary.

A one- half million dollar allocation for the facility was included in House Bill 14, which has already received approval from the lower chamber and last week received approval from the Senate Appropriations committee.

Downing said that despite opposition to the Steele site from penal and judicial quarters in St. Louis and Kansas City, he believes that with the approval of this appropriation and with the work that has already been done, the legislature will support the prison at Steele. He said another factor that has helped is the approval by the people of Steele of the issuance of bonds to provide money to meet their obligations in the project.

Downing met last week with W. G. Miller, newly-appointed director of the Missouri Department of Corrections, to determine Miller's views on the Steele site. The Pemiscot County legislator quoted Miller as saying he still favored the site and considers a security prison "a must for the state of Missouri."

As to when the proposed prison facility can be built, Downing explained that funds for the unit are included in a proposed $260 million statewide bond issue. The proposal, which will be submitted to the voters if it receives approval from the General Assembly, has passed the House of Representatives and is pending before the state Senate.

Although originally pegged as a $5 million project, the cost of the maximum security unit has gradually been increased, with latest estimates ranging from $10 to $12 million.

What's The Law

Shopkeeper Must Conform To Time

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The only way Hubert ever killed time was to work it to death. A determined and industrious shopkeeper, he tried never to lose a moment of productive effort. Consequently, when a law was passed directing that only standard time be used in his area, he ignored it completely. And, at the appointed hour moved the hands of the big clock in his store window ahead one revolution, as he had done in previous years, and went on Daylight Savings Time.

Instead of saving time, however, Hubert found himself confronted with the possibility of having to serve time. He was arrested for ignoring and violating the law.

"This is America," he protested in his defense. "The home of the free and the brave. And, if a man can't operate his business under any time system he deems most beneficial, he isn't free. Consequently, the time law is un-American and unconstitutional."

"That's absurd," retorted the district attorney. "There's nothing wrong with the law, only with Hubert. He wants to be a nonconformist. If time were permitted to be different for everyone, there'd be more confusion than in Alice in Wonderland and we'd all be Mad Hatters."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE' would you jail Hubert for refusing to operate on standard time?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a state may pass laws that are deemed necessary for the safety, health, morals, etc. of its people. The standardizing of time, noted the judge, is reasonably necessary since the use of different time standards would lead to obvious confusion. (Based upon a 1957 Tennessee Supreme Court Decision)

Case Dismissal Overwhelms Both Client, Attorney

KANSAS CITY AP — City Magistrate Bernard W. Gnefkow reached an overwhelming decision here Wednesday.

He dismissed the case against a 250-pound woman in a preliminary hearing on a bad check charge.

The woman, in her mid 40s, jumped from her seat at the counsel table, uttered a cry of joy and fainted.

Her 140-pound attorney tried to catch her on the way down, but failed. Both ended on the floor in a heap.

The woman regained consciousness after a few minutes and regained her feet, thanking the magistrate for his ruling.

"What I'd like to know," Gnefkow said, "is what you would have done if I had found you guilty."

Cancer Kick Off Banquet Scheduled For Monday

Mrs. James Allen

Mrs. James E. Allen, of Cape Girardeau, one of the more than 2 million volunteers of the American Cancer Society, who will work in the April Cancer Crusade, will speak at the Monday night kick off event of Scott County at the Ramada Inn.

Mrs. Allen has been a volunteer with the Cape Girardeau County Unit of the Society 17 years and is serving on the unit's board of directors and is memorial gift fund program chairman in her county and division chairman of the program in Missouri. Mrs. Allen is a member of the Missouri division crusade committee for the Society.

A former Scott Countian, Mrs. Allen was born and reared in Morley, daughter of the late Jesse and Viola Brasher. She is a member of the Cape Girardeau First Baptist Church and the Girardot Chapter of the National Secretaries Association and is employed as secretary at Guth Bros. Block and Brick Company in Cape Girardeau. Her husband, James E. Allen, is coach and teacher in the Cape Girardeau public school system.

"Cancer knows no boundaries," Mrs. Allen said, "It is not a problem only in Scott County and Cape Girardeau County, or is it a problem only in Missouri and our nation, cancer is a world-wide problem and affects the lives of our friends, neighbors, co-workers and associates. Many of us have experienced it in our own families.

"As volunteers, we must alert others to the hopeful side of this problem. Although total victory over cancer still eludes our scientists, great strides are geing made in the field of research. About one in four Americans, according to present rates, will eventually have cancer. One out of three patients is now being saved. Yet the figure could be one out of two if more people would see their physicians in time for early diagnosis and treatment. 1,400,000 Americans are alive today, cured of cancer, many more people can be saved if they can be persuaded to see their doctors in time."

This is the message crusade volunteers will take to each home in Scott County during April as they give Scott Countians the opportunity to join the Fight Against Cancer by making their annual contribution to the April Crusade.

The public is invited to attend. For reservations call 471-2850.

Biology Teacher Has Facts Wrong

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our biology teacher made a statement yesterday that sounded very strange to say the least. He said if it was absolutely necessary, a father could nurse his children. A few of us told him we couldn't understand how this was possible. He assured us it could be done. Is he right? — Curious at Mt. Abe

Dear Curious: Dr. Rodney Jamieson, Chicago internist and staff member of Presbyterian - St. Luke's Hospital is the medical authority for the following statement: "No way. Unless the father holds the bottle."

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 17-year-old daughter who will be going to college next year. After visiting twelve institutions of higher learning in the East, we found the same story everywhere — beautiful campuses, impressive buildings, lovely landscaping — and crummy looking students. Dirty unisex clothing; unshaven, mop-haired males; slobby, braless girls in shawls, jeans, sandals and faded hip-huggers.

Am I crazy because I don't buy that bit about "it's what's inside that counts?" It seems to me what's outside has some relation to what's inside. Manners and decent language appear to be a thing of the past, too.

These kids don't realize that many colleges and universities could not survive if it weren't for the endownment of the older generation who have given freely of their funds. I'm sure many alumni would turn over in their graves if they could get a glimpse of the students on most campuses today. Sign me — Establishment Square

Dear Es: There is no rational defense for personal neglect, dirt, bad manners or foul language. And there's no denying it — it's more prevalent both off and on campuses than it used to be. But there is also less hypocrisy, and a stronger commitments to higher ideals. A generation that is against the Vietnam war, outspoken in behalf of equal opportunities for minority groups, dedicated to fighting pollution and saving our environment can't be all bad.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I married for the second time. Both my wife and I had children from previous marriages. Our troubles can all be traced to my wife's kids who behave like animals. We also have a difficult time with her ex-husband who is a crackpot. He bribes the kids with glamorous vacations, fancy camps and expensive schools. If they disagree with him he threatens to stop paying for their psychiatric sessions. This plunges them into a state of anxiety and depression.

When I try to discipline the children they tell their father I am a sadist and he encourages them to run away from home. This upsets their mother terribly and she blames me for being too hard on them.

Frankly I think my wife should hand these kids over to their father and let them drive HIM crazy. She says she will never give them up and if she must choose between them and me, she'll have to choose them. Is there any way to keep my marriage from falling apart? — I Really Care

Dear Care: If you and your wife have not had joint counseling, I recommend it. Ask the doctor who is seeing the children to suggest someone who can help you resolve your internal problems so you can function as parents. Those kids have you both over a barrel and they know it.

Is pot a drug? Can L.S.D. and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 16 cents postage to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Supreme Court To Be Asked For Parochial Aid Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court wil be asked to define how government can support church-run schools, but President Nixon may come up with his own solution first.

Nixon went to Philadelphia Thursday to strengthen his pledge to develop an "equitable, workable and constitutional" method to funnel government dollars into nonpublic schools.

In the same city a few hours later, a three-judge federal court struck down a sevenmonth-old Pennsylvania law which sent nonpublic school aid to parents, rather than to the schools. The law was the result of specific efforts to tailor provisions to earlier Supreme Court guidelines.

John Cardinal Krol, archbishop of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic Archdiocese, said the ruling would be appealed to the Supreme Court, which held last June that some forms of government aid to church schools are constitutional.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote that "the crucial question is not whether some benefit accrues to a religious institution as a consequence of the legislative program, but whether its principal or primary effect advances religion."

The primary effect of the Pennsylvania law was to advance religion, said the decision Thursday by federal Appeals Court Judge William Hastie and District Court Judges Joseph S. Lord and John B. Hannum.

"The state has no more power to subsidize parents in providing a religious education for their child than it has to subsidize church-related schools to do so," the judges wrote.

Nixon took note of the constitutional tightrope in a speech to a Catholic educators' group in Philadelphia.

"We are all aware of the very grave constitutional questions which have arisen in the past, each time the states or the federal government have undertaken to provide aid to nonpublic schools," he said.

Nixon promised "specific measures designed to preserve the nonpublic school system in the United States" after the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and the presidential Commission on School Finance complete studies.

The Pennsylvania law authorized $47 million a year to reimburse parents for tuition at 1,500 nonpublic schools, all but 250 of them Catholic.

Meanwhile, the dispute over parochial aid continues in state legislatures and courts.

There are 32 pending lawsuits which either challenge or seek public funds for church-related schools, according to the American Jewish Congress.

The National Catholic Education Association said last fall that 19 states either have passed or were considering legislation to help parochial schools.

This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

For April 9, 1972

SCRIPTURE:

Matthew 18:19-20; John 4:19-24; Acts 2:41-47; Colossians 3:14-17

(Based on outlines prepared by the Department of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission.)

THE CHURCH: A WORSHIPPING COMMUNITY

Worship is a thirsty land crying out for rain, a candle in the act of being kindled, a voice in the night calling for help, and a man climbing the altar stairs to God.

When Dwight Bradley sought to explain "What Is Worship?" He realized there were many unanswered questions.

What do we do when we worship? What happens to us when we worship? What ought to happen? How should we be changed?

In a review Deuteronomy one becomes aware of the change in worship as he reads the Old and New Testaments. The negative approach placed stress on idols, on elaborate procedures, on formal rituals.

Missed were some of the essential elements of worship as revealed by Jesus. Worship should be joyful: it should recognize God in words and music. But it need not be centered primarily in the Temple in Jerusalem as it once was. No longer does the believer have to travel to one city to offer his sacrifice.

"Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them," Jesus told his followers.

Worship should be a natural part of the church. Here Jesus promises that "if two of you agree on earth about anything they ask, it will be done for them by my Father in Heaven."

Jesus also offered to hear our prayers in secret behind closed doors. Yet strength can be gained through congregational prayers with others.

One should attend worship services to secure access to God and to discover means of moral regeneration. Unfortunately, too many persons attend services to be seen by others.

Yet contact with God need not be made in formal services. Our home could be a church where we can feel God's blessing. God comes to us daily when we let him.

Some will ask "What is the church?" Luke places emphasis on prayer and on the breaking of bread together. It can be a formality that becomes a habit. It can also be a place of final resort, a place to go for help.

Our Scripture readings assure us that God responds to sincere worship. He reveals Himself to the worshipping community through the Bible, the sacraments, prayer, hymns, and fellowship.

Prayer, if really sincere will affect one's life. We get in focus with God, with all the doors open.

Some uneasiness exists today between young persons and the older generation over the means of worship. Some persons prefer the traditional, formal rituals in use for so many years.

Others seek a more informal approach, with the use of contemporary folk songs and informal prayers and sermons.

Considerable sentiment exists now over the school prayer bill. Should prayers be permitted in schools? Should they be required? Should they be denied? Church leaders are conservative and some are liberal in many ways.

Religion has in recent years become a more openly discussed topic. It has become front-page news in many newspapers. It has forced many persons to think more about a subject they for years took for granted.

Prayer too often is taken for granted.

William Temple has summarized today's lesson rather well. "This world can be saved from political chaos and collapse by only one thing. worship to quicken the conscience by the holiness of God, to feed the mind with the truth of God, to devote the will to the purpose of God."

College Boy To Speak At New Madrid UMC

Methodists Get Interim Pastor

Rev. Ralph Dodson

The Rev. E. W. Bartley, district superintendent of United Methodist churches in the Sikeston - Poplar Bluff district, has announced the appointment of the Rev. Ralph H. Dodson of Dexter as interim pastor of First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North to serve until the meeting of the annual conference in June.

The appointment was made to fill the vacancy created by the death March 6 of the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, who had been pastor seven years.

The Rev. Mr. Dodson is a member of the faculty at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, teaching sociology.

He is a native of Scott County and attended high school in Morley. He began his teaching career at the Greer school, three miles west of Sikeston. He is a member of the Detroit conference of the United Methodist Church. He is now retired, having served 42 years under the appointment of the church.

The Rev. Mr. Dodson has served as registrar and direcor of personnel of Martin College in Pulaski, Tenn.; president of John Wesley College in Greensboro, N.C.; dean of Davaou Bible College in Davaou City in the Phillipines; pastor of the United Methodist church in Davaou City; and has conducted evangelistic crusades in Hong Kong, Formosa, Japan and Korea. He and his wife also taught in a mission school — Japan Christian Academy -- in Tokyo.

He and his wife, the former Birdie Louise Crawford of Dexter, have two sons and a daughter. One son, Edwin, is a lawyer in Phoenix, and the other son, Edmond is first vice president in the Metropolitan National Bank in Farmington, Mich. The daughter, Esther Janes, is married and lives in Owosso, Mich. They have eight grandchildren.

Bad Check Alert System Formed

The Chambers of Commerce of Malden, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Kennett are forming a Red Alert system to notify their members of any illegal checks and or money orders being passed in the area and the use of lost or stolen credit cards.

When the procedure is followed, each Chamber of Commerce member in Southeast Missouri will have been notified of the particulars by direct phone call. Details are described as follows:

A merchant in Sikeston receives a bad check or money order. He will notify the police, as always. Sikeston police will place the information on their band and notify the Chamber.

The Sikeston Chamber of Commerce, as a back- up, notifies the Poplar Bluff Chamber of Commerce. The Poplar Bluff police will confirm this report. Poplar Bluff will notify other cities within the chain.

This same procedure will be followed until all cities south of Sikeston are notified. When the Red Alert is received in the Chamber office, the Chamber will notify from five to ten members of the RedAlert (this number will depend upon members who desire to participate in this program when the final charts are drawn up). These members will then notify two other members (approximately two minutes of actual time on the phone); these two members will then call two members each.

In conclusion, by each member making only two phone calls, the members of the Malden Chamber of Commerce can and will be well informed of any bad checks, money orders or credit cards being passed in Southeast Missouri.

Red Alert, 3x5, descriptive cards will be furnished by the Chamber for records. It can only fail if one member of the Chambrer does not make the assigned phone calls. This method has proved successful in numerous cities.

Those interested in participating should contact O. D. Clayton, at the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce.

Bradley Won't Run This Year

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Bradley of the New York Knicks announced today that he has decided not to seek a political office in Missouri this year.

Bradley, who had been expected to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer, told a news conference that he felt there was too little time before the August primary to mount "the type of issue-oriented campaign I feel is necessary and desirable."

Bradley also noted that he had been approached about running for Congress from the 4th District in New York but said, "I am not interested and never have been."

Bradley said he will campaign actively this fall for Democratic candidates in Missouri. He said he has made no decision about playing pro basketball next year, but added:

"I probably will play basketball no longer than one more year."

The 28-year-old Bradley maintains a residence in Crystal City, Mo., just southwest of St. Louis. He was an Al-America basketball star at Princeton University and attended Oxford University in England on a Rhodes scholarship.

Although he won't run for office this year, Bradley indicated he would be interested in Missouri politics in the future.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1935 for robbery in Kentucky, and again in 1955, also for armed robbery.

During 1970 Mahan was charged with possession of narcotics with intent to sell.

Mahan apparently was unmarried. His address is listed as 807 North 21st St., Paducah.

Coroner Rainey was given names of a brother, Ralph Mahan of Munster, Ind., and a nephew, Billy Mason of Montgomery. The family has been notified.

Rainey said he assumes someone will come to make positive identification.

The body is at the Rainey Funeral Home.

Two New Councilmen Sworn In

EAST PRAIRIE — City Clerk Webb DeField administered oaths of office to Jones Hedge and W. E. Moss, councilmen elected in Tuesday's election, at last night's meeting of the city council.

Lloyd Hogan was re-elected by the council to serve a one- year term as mayor, and Moss was elected to serve a one- year term as vice mayor. Joining the council as youth members were Kevin Hutcheson and Kathie Simpkins.

The council approved four recommendations from the park and recreation committee. The Lion's Club will be permitted to use the H. A. Jones Park, outside the fenced-in perimeter of the baseball diamond, for a carnival, providing the club will be responsible for any damages to the park.

The area can be used for a circus sponsored by the fire department under the same conditions.

The baseball field will be open during the summer from 8 a.m. until conclusion of scheduled night games, providing the city can get adult supervision and scheduling.

Also approved was the committee's recommendation that the park's light meter be listed in the city's name, and the bill be paid by pro- rating the cost between the teams playing under the lights.

The council tabled a recommendation from the committee that swimming time at the city pool be divided into two 3-hour sessions, and the pool be emptied between sessions.

The council canvassed and approved Tuesday's election returns, approved collector's report, showing a total of 17,251.52 collected and payment of $7,784.58 expenditures.

Police judge report for March showed a total of $372 assessed fines. Of this amount, $276 was collected and the difference worked out on city streets.

Sen. Curtis Compares Beef, Cattle Prices With Those Of 20 Years Ago

HASTINGS, Neb. — Cattle feeders around Hastings were getting a little less for fed steers and heifers back in January of 1952 than they were in mid-February this year, but today's retail beef prices are about twice as high as they were then.

PATRONS OF THE NEW MADRID COUNTY R-1 ENLARGED SCHOOL DISTRICT.

The School election is over, and we have lost- the seat on the Board that is. It would only be sour grapes to describe how it was lost- so we shall not attempt to do so here.

What is proper here is to thank all of you who rallied to this cause, who came to the polls in sufficient numbers, and who refused to be gagged or blinded folded.

It is difficult not to be disillusioned at this time, but there must be no rancor or bitterness for this too is blinding. Our only apology goes to that host of young people who joined our cause and worked so hard in this their first venture only to taste the salt of defeat. We could remind our young friends, you have lost the battle but not the war and time is on your side.

Our heartfelt appreciation to all who did their very best.

POWER HITTING JIM SAULTERS (19) AND SPEEDSTER GREG COLWICK (53) were victims of a strong left handed pitcher Thursday afternoon as the Sikeston high school baseball team played its first complete game of the spring ... a 10-1 loss to Cape Girardeau Central. John Johnson masted a three-hitter at the Bulldogs and stymied the two sophomore Bulldogs stars with no hits.

Johnson Masters Bulldogs

The Cape Girardeau Central Tigers drubbed the sophomore laden Sikeston Bulldogs at VFW Stadium Thursday afternoon, 10-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Jim Johnson.

Sophomore Richard Blankenship started on the mound for the Bulldogs but was unable to hold the hard hitting Tigers at bay. He was touched for four runs in the first inning. The Bulldogs were never in the game after that.

Sikeston made an effort to score in the first inning but Johnson was a little too much for the young diamond crew of coach N. P. McDaniel.

Coach McDaniel started seven sophomores and one freshman. The bulk of last year's starting nine graduated. The youngsters are most of the athletes, who won the Junior Babe Ruth state title and placed second in the Midwest Plains regional.

Cape Girardeau Central scored its fifth run in the third and added three runs in the sixth and four more in the top of the seventh. The pitching staff of the Bulldogs was unable to contain the Tigers.

Mike Volkerding slashed a wind assisted homer to cap the Bengals seventh inning scoring.

Sixteen players for the Bulldogs saw action.

Sikeston made three previous attempts to play games but either darkness or rain had halted the games. Cape Central is 2-0 for the season in SEMO conference play and the Bulldogs are 0-1.

Coach McDaniel pointed out that veteran Eddie McDowell would be starting against the Tigers next time they meet.

Big Red Lose $40,000 Suit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fomer defensive tackle Luke Owens of the St. Louis Cardinals has been awarded $40,000 in a breach of contract suit against the team.

Owens was a member of the National Football League club for seven years. In 1963 he won the Cardinals' Most Valuable Player award.

The circuit court suit claimed Owens had been released by the Cardinals because of heart tests conducted in training camp in 1956. Oens' attorney Marshall Friedman contended the heart problem had existed since 1963, and, therefore, the club had forfeited the right to base the release on physical condition.

The jury in the court of Judge Michael Scott deliberated only 40 minutes before awarding the judgment to Owens Thursday.

The $40,000 was based on the fact that Owens was playing under a two-year, $20,000-a-year contract when released.

Lions Roar Loud In Opener, 18-2

SENATH -- The Senath - Hornersville Lions opened their baseball season to annilate the Holcomb Hornets after four and a half innings of baseball play when it was called due to the ten-run rule, with the score 18-2.

Two triples by Greg Gillette and one by David Tinnin served to advance the Lions' attack. Gillette was Senath's hitting star connecting for three of the total nine. Tinnin was also in the spotlight with four runs batted in.

The combined efforts of Pitchers Paul Davis and Kent Waggoner held the Hornets to three hits. Davis showed good control in pitching the first three innings, giving up only one hit and striking out four. Waggoner finished the game with a record of 10 strikeouts and walked eight.

Mike Sims and Bill Cantrell were credited with striking out two men each as they divided the pitching honors for the Hornets. Sims also connected for two of the total hits of the Hornets, batting in the two runs in the last inning to become the star of the game.

Kuhlmann Joins GB Staff

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Mizzour coach Al Onofrio confirmed today that Henry (Hank) Kuhlmann, a Tiger assistant football coach, had accepted a new position with the Green Bay Packers professional team.

In a news story out of Green Bay, the 35- year- old Kuhlmann was designated as the team's "special teams' coach". It is a newly-created coaching specialty, a Packer spokesman said.

Onofrio indicated that he has a successor for Kuhlmann in mind who would be named "in the near future". The Webster Groves, Mo. native has completed nine years on the Bengal staff.

"Hank has made a real contribution to Missouri football as a player coach and recruiter," Onofrio said. "He is a very loyal and conscientious person -- and I am happy for him that he has this fine opportunity to advance himself professionally."

At Green Bay, Kuhlmann will be rejoining his former coach and boss, Dan Devine. Hank was a senior tailback on Devine's first Tiger team in 1958. He was hired by Devine as a graduate assistant in 1962, and became a fulltimes staff member a year later.

"I kinda hate to leave right now ... Missouri football has meant a lot to me. We've had a great recruiting year – and the future looks so promising," Kuhlmann said, adding:

"But this is a promotion that will help broaden me as a coach -- and I couldn't turn it down."

Kuhlmann was one of four backs from Webster Groves high, recruited by the Tigers in 1955 when Coach Don Faurot signed the entire backfield which included Glen St. Pierre, Charlie James and Joe Heimlicher.

When To Run?

WARRENTON -- It takes a while, but sooner or later a conservation agent learns when to run and when not to.

"Everyone has heard about the game warden that went to check two hunters," says Art Johnson, Warren County conservation agent. "One ran and the warden went after him, only to find that he was the one with the hunting permit while the guy that stayed behind (and vanished) didn't have one."

Johnson had two different instances in January when one hunter of a party ran and the others didn't. In both cases, he checked the stay-at-homes, then followed the runner.

In both cases, the runners didn't have hunting permits. In both cases, the runners had excuses. One said, "Well, I want to become a conservation agent and I was afraid if I got a ticket, it would hurt my chances."

Right. The other excuse was more direct: "Frankly, I didn't think you could catch me."

But Johnson did and it cost each $10 and costs.

Berra Named Manager

NEW YORK (AP) — If and when the baseball season gets under way, Yogi Berra will manage the New York Mets and Rusty Staub will be in right field.

Less than four hours after the body of Gil Hodges was buried Thursday [in his beloved Brooklyn, the Mets named Berra, who won the 1964 American League pennant with the New York Yankees in his only previous managerial experience, to replace him.

At the same time, they announced the acquisition of the hard-hitting Staub from the Montreal Expos in a 3-for-1 deal. The Mets gave up outfielder Ken Singleton, first baseman-outfielder Mike Jorgensen and infielder Tom Foli, all young players and all expected to be regulars for the Expos.

The Staub deal was consumated last weekend and General Manager Bob Scheffing said it would have been announced Sunday but for the baseball strike. To add to the confusion, Hodges collapsed and died of a heart attack late Sunday afternoon.

"We just couldn't sit on it any longer," Scheffing said when asked why the dual announcement was made the day of Hodges' funeral. "It even leaked out today. The Associated Press had it before we announced it. We were lucky to sit on it this long."

The naming of Berra, who will be 47 next month, as manager climaxes an unusual career for the Hall of Fame catcher that saw him star for 17 years with the crosstown Yankees and manage them for one season, only to be fired after losing the 1964 World Seriesto the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games. He has been the Mets' first base coach ever since.

Berra was passed over twice previously by the Mets—in 1965, when Casey Stengel broke his hip and was succeeded by Wes Westrum, and in 1968, when Westrum gave way to Hodges.

"We left a good man today," Berra, still wearing his dark blue funeral suit, said, referring to Hodges. "I hope I can fill his shoes, that's all."

The Mets also got a good man in the 28-year-old Staub, who hit .311 with 19 home runs and 97 runs batted in for Montreal last season.

Singleton, 24, hit .245 for the Mets last year with 13 homers and 45 RBI. Jorgensen batted .220 with five homers and 11 RBI in a half-season with the Mets after hitting .342 with 15 homers and 41 RBI in the International League. Foli had a .226 average with the Mets with no homers and 24 RBI. All three are considered good prospects.

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Marcos Jimenez, "El Paperito" of Paraguay, scored a technical knockout over France's Paul Rourre in the fourth round of scheduled eight-round lightweight boxing match at Bilbao's Sports Pavilion Thursday night.

Gardner Masters Clarkton, 9-4

HAYTI -- The Indians soundly whipped the Clarkton Reindeer Thursday afternoon, 9-4, in a non-conference baseball game.

Randy Gardner allowed only three hits and was backed by a 12-hit attack by the Indians. Dennis Duffel started on the mound for the Reindeer and took the loss. Gardner struck out 15 batters.

The game was highlighted by a triple play by the Clarkton defense, which also pulled off three double plays.

Hayti took the lead in the first inning scoring two runs. Clarkton came back in the third inning to score four runs but Hayti took the lead for good in the fourth by plating three more runs to lead 5-4. The Indians added insurance runs in the sixth and seventh.

Morgan, Mixie, and Booth had three hits apiece to lead the Hayti offense. Delong collected two of the three hits by Clarkton.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon would a-bomb Vietnam – If; one 'China Hand' FBI won't probe; Navy links long hair and laziness

Food Program In Trouble

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) — The painful history of the surplus commodity program in Missouri got a new headache Thursday.

Gov. Warren E. Hernes signed into law last month a provision for the state to relieve counties of administration costs. But the money for the program which became effective April 1 is tied up in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Without the emergency money, about $200,000 to last through June county courts are wondering what happens now.

Rep. E. J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, House appropriations chairman, said he fears "counties no longer have the legislative authority to pay their share" because of the wording of the new law.

Rep. Joe D. Holt, D-Fulton, a member of the House appropriations committee, agreed.

"If the Senate does not approve the funding,' Holt said, "under the bill enacted, the entire program in every county must grind to a halt."

Meanwhile, Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter said a letter went out Monday over his signature to 104 counties notifying county courts they are relieved of all responsibilities of local administration costs under the newly-enacted law.

Carter predicts that without Senate approval of the pending emergency money, already approved by the House, "the situation will be chaos."

Holt said the new law provides that the surplus foods program may be funded by the county and state with the county putting up no more than 15 per cent if it so chooses.

That option, he said, is lost in further restricting language which says the state must put up 85 per cent added to federal money. Without state money, there is no program.

Cantrell said he is also worried about the aid to dependent children money in the emergency money bill.

He said "These are the people who rely on surplus food to live. They'll be hit from two sides" without the Senate's approval of the money bill, he predicts.

Total Employment Is Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The total number of Americans with jobs posted the largest gain in March in nearly five years and the rise in wholesale prices slowed sharply, the government reported today.

Wholesale prices are generally indicators of later developments in retail consumer costs.

The report that total employment rose 620,000 to 81.2 million and that wholesale prices of food and industrial raw materials increased a modest onetenth of one per cent indicated more favorable developments for President Nixon to defend his economic policies.

The reports by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics also said that the nation's unemployment rate edged up from 5.7 to 5.9 per cent last month, but this was due to seasonal factors and the actual number of jobless edged down some 200,000 to 5.2 million.

The report on wholesale prices included the news that farm products and processed foods declined four-tenths of one per cent in March after several months of sharp increases.

M.U. President Arrested

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, president of the University of Missouri, was arrested here Thursday night and charged with driving while intoxicated.

The arrest followed a minor two-car collision in which no one was injured.

Ratchford, 51, was released on $250 bond. A hearing was set for April 14 in Boone County Magistrate Court.

Fourth Street Cleans Up

Residents of the 4th Street area, ordered to clean up their property because it was harboring rats, have done just that, according to the Scott County Health Department.

In a letter to Bill Whitlock, from health investigator Warren Manning, Manning said the clean up "should greatly alleviate the problem of rats and vermin in the immediate area."

He said a few lots still contained some lumber, junk, and garbage, which will provide harborage for the rodents. "However," Manning said, "if garbage is stored properly, we feel the rats will not remain in the area."

The health department investigated the area in February at the request of the Daily Standard. A resident of the area told the Daily Standard that rats had entered his home from a nearby junk pile owned by Collins Construction Co.

The health department investigation showed the rat's home was not in the construction company's dump, but rather in the neighborhood junk piles.

Whitlock sent the residents a letter telling them to clean up the area, and both the city and the health department feel they have complied with the order.

School Theft Attempt Fails

NEW MADRID — Police report Scott Street School was entered last night and an unsuccessful attempt made to break open a soda machine.

Entry was gained by going up a fire escape and breaking an upper story window. A drum had been taken to the basement but nothing was reported missing.

Truck Stolen At Essex

ESSEX — A 1961 green International truck, license number 354-330, owned by Mack Bain of Parma was stolen Wednesday night from Farmers Storage.

The truck, loaded with beans, was left under a shed and was discovered missing at 7 a..m. Thursday.

The highway patrol and the Stoddard county sheriff's department are investigating.

Kiwanis Governor To Sikeston

Dan M. Carr, Kiwanis governor of the Mo-Ark. district will pay his official visit to Division 15 Tuesday, at the Ramada Inn. The Sikeston Club will be host at the 7 p.m. session.

Division 15 had 13 Kiwanis Clubs.

Carr is a member of the Downtown Kiwanis Club of Kansas City, of which he is president. He has been active in Kiwanis since 1956. He has been lieutenant governor of division 4 and has been chairman of the Mo.-Ark. District public relations committee four times.

Joe Watson of East Prairie is lieutenant governor of District 15.

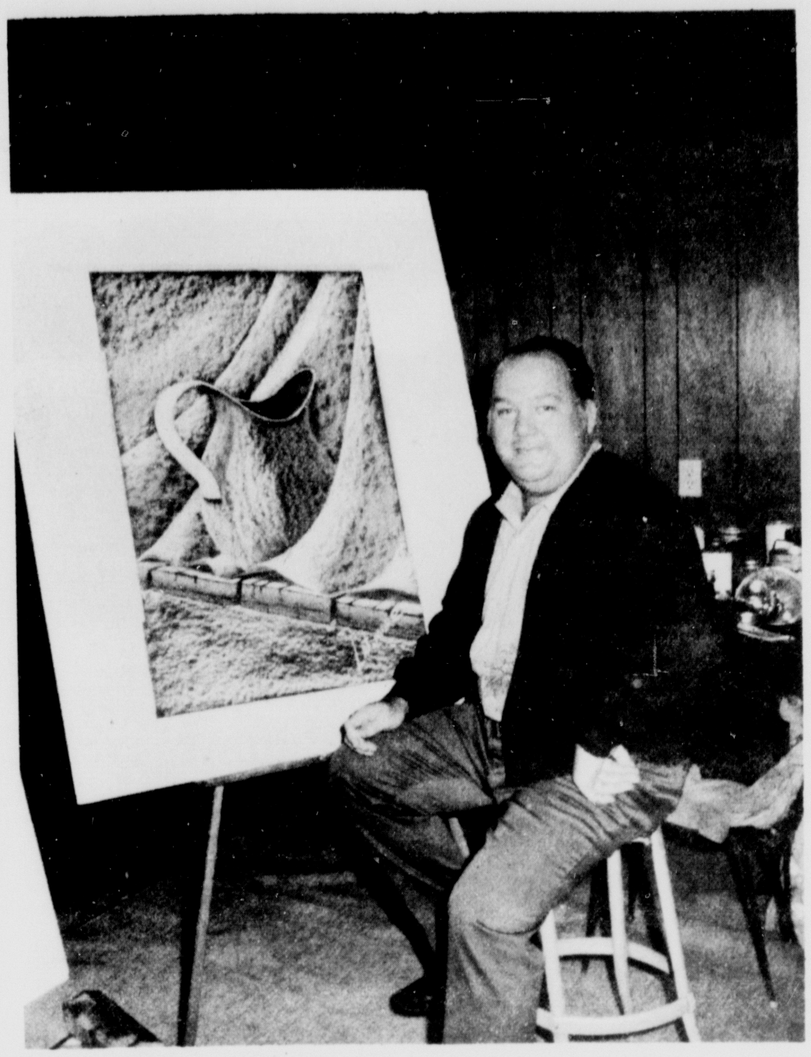
Car Rams Truck on I-55

A St. Louis man was slightly injured about 11:30 p.m. yesterday when his car rammed the rear of a Mack Truck on the north New Madrid interchange of Interstate 55, according to the highway patrol.

Joseph Young, 44, was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital with head cuts. The truck was driven by Phillip Higgins, 25 of Memphis.

Sharon Hart, 22, of Advance was taken to Dexter Hospital with cuts and bruises yesterday after a collision at 4:45 p.m. in Advance.

According to the patrol, Miss Hart stopped at a stop sign and then pulled into the path of a car driven by John Smith, 39, of Bloomfield.



FOR JOHNNIE LATIMORE of Dexter art has turned into more than a hobby.

Dexter Painter Fought As Kid to Get Coin for Colors

By PAM HORTON

DEXTER — What began as a hobby for John Latimore, has become a source of extra income.

"I began drawing when I was five or six at Charleston" he said. "My weaknesses even at this early age were cussing and fighting. My parents were poor but my dad had managed to buy me a pair of boxing gloves and every Sunday I would go down to the old blacksmith shop and the drunks would usually give me a quarter or 50 cents to either fight some kid or draw a picture for them. I then took this money to buy my crayolas. Actually I'm really a very docile person, but I guess you could say I needed water colors and was willing to fight for them."

"Art developed over a period of years as a hobby and as something I enjoyed doing. But I guess it's past that point now. Now I don't always paint what I want to paint but what I know will sell to support my hobby."

Latimore lived in Charleston 33 years where he was employed by Missouri Utilities. He transferred to Dexter, where he and his wife and two daughters have lived five years.

"I quit school at Charleston when I was 17 to enter the army," he recalled.

Although he had the opportunity to attend three colleges on foot ball scholarships, he turned them down feeling school wasn't for him. So as far as any training in art, Latimore has developed his skill by trial and error.

To him probably one of the most depressing facets of art today is that it is losing authenticity.

"People suffer tremendously by allowing a reprint for $12.95 in their home instead of an original," he said. "Authenticity is being lost in America in everything, even down to the ability to visit."

Latimore works in charcoals, oil, and water colors. He states that "my wife, Carolyn, is my worst critic. I always ask her for advice in my color schemes."

"I don't like to paint people as I feel I can't duplicate skin tones." He recalls being asked to paint a baptistry scene for the small Klines Island Baptist Church near Bloomfield.

The pastor had estimated costs from others ranging from $450 to $900. "I painted the scene for $100. I remember getting down on my knees and asking God to help me. I finished the painting in only 16 hours.

"What do I see for myself after retirement? Probably a painting preacher. I would like for us to buy a camper and travel around the country preaching in small churches that have financial difficulties.

"This explains in itself my philosophy, that life is a quest for happiness and I am convinced that there is no happiness in a life outside of Christ."

Reds Open Fourth Front

SAIGON (AP) - North Vietnamese troops captured a district town 75 miles north of Saigon today and opened a fourth front in their nine-day old offensive with more than a dozen attacks on towns and bases in the Mekong Delta to the south.

U.S. warplanes meanwhile hammered North Vietnamese forces in North and South Vietnam and neighboring stretches of Laos with more than 600 strikes. Two Navy fighter-bombers and a big rescue helicopter were shot down, the U.S. Command said, and six Americans were missing.

The district town of LocNinh fell after fighting so close that an air spotter overhead reported the defending South Vietnamese were calling artillery fire in on their own positions.

The spotter reported eight to ten North Vietnamese tanks attacking the town, and later the South Vietnamese command announced that Loc Ninh was abandoned during the morning after four days of heavy attack.

The Viet Cong radio claimed that the South Vietnamese garrison surrendered after Communist forces killed, wounded or captured 400 of the defenders. But Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the chief spokesman for the Saigon command, said the government troops "moved out to an area outside the city."

Casualties on both sides were reported heavy.

Government forces also abandoned Fire Base Hung Tam, five miles southwest of Loc Ninh and 10 miles below the Cambodian border, to the enemy.

Field reports said elements of four North Vietnamese divisions had crossed the Cambodian border in force and penetrated at least 20 miles into South Vietnamese territory.

Small enemy units slipped to within 20 miles of Saigon and damaged a bridge on Highway 13, the north-south road from the border. A bypass was being used.

Enemy forces were reported to have cut the highway temporarily in nine places south of An Loc, the capital of Binh Long Province 60 miles north of Saigon. Government troops were making sweeps in an effort to keep the route open to supply convoys.

An Loc itself was threatened, and positions all around it were under rocket and mortor attack. But the Saigon command said the government still held the town.

Few details were known of the attacks in the Mekong Delta, but the command said 40 of the enemy and 10 government troops were killed and 23 government men were wounded.

The threat to Saigon was not considered immediate, senior officers said, but the urgent need for reinforcements drained the capital region of its reserve forces.

Marshal Resigns

NEW MADRID — City Marshal O. E. Householder Thursday resigned two days after being re-elected for a two-year term. He was serving his 18th year as city marshal, and said he was leaving the city when he resigned.

City attorney Hal E. Hunter, Jr., at a council meeting Thursday night advised the board that Householder's resignation only covered the unexpired three weeks remaining in his present terms, which ends May 1, as newly-elected officers will not be sworn in before that time.

If the marshal - elect appears May 1 to accept office he will be sworn in, if he does not, a special election will be called to fill the vacancy.

No appointment was made to fill the unexpired term but the council authorized City Administrator Russell Ellis to be in charge of the police department during the period.

The city's regular officers are Russell Cobb and Gene Lyles. Officer Billy Carter is employed on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Fire Guts Storage Shed

Fire gutted a storage building about 4:30 p.m. yesterday behind the James Moore III residence at 412 North Kingshighway. Firemen, who fought the blaze for an hour, said it was started by burning trash.

About 10:45 a.m. yesterday firemen were called to the intersection of Interstates 55 and 57 when a water hose broke on a K & K Produce truck. A woman, who saw the steam rising from under the hood, called firemen.

At 5:50 a.m. today, firemen were called to the intersection of South Kingshighway and route 61 when a Missouri Utilities high-voltage line fell. No fire resulted.

Paducah Man Slaying Victim

DEXTER — Stoddard County Coroner Ray Rainey said early today a man found March 26 in a Stoddard County drainage ditch has been identified tentatively as Joseph Harry Mahan, 63, of the Paducah area. Ivan Briggs, a Canalou resident, discovered the man's partially- clothed body near Charter Oak, south of here, floating face up in three feet of water.

He had suffered a probable fractured skull, and his hands and feet were bound.

A bloody sheet was found near the body. Rainey said he felt the man had been killed somewhere else and dumped into the ditch.

Paducah detectives apparently stumbled onto the identification through records on Mahan dating back to 1932.

A SOCIAL CONTRACT:
THE MANAGEMENT OF CHANGE

Effective response to social change is possibly the most demanding challenge for all of us in the 20th Century.

Many aspects of American life are under attack. On the business side, profit is suspect. The concept of rising standards of living, once known as progress, is today all too often labeled "false" or "crass" materialism. The utilization of nature's resources is regarded by many as ecological destruction. Technology is charged with being the enemy of human values. Size achieved through efficiency is considered somehow illegal and immoral.

In accepting the responsibilities of its social contract — to furnish to the consumer the goods and services he wants at a satisfactory return to owner-investors — industry has depended upon the general public and the government to provide a reasonably harmonious atmosphere in which to produce and distribute its products and services.

A changing value structure, however, materially affects the social contract under which American companies historically have functioned. That's why management in these troubled times must choose to manage change and not to become its victim.

Typical of the new breed at the top of American business are the men running American Can Company. Under the guidance of Chairman of the Board and President William F. May, American Can — itself an American institution — has accepted as a major management responsibility the function of listening and responding to "what the public is trying to tell us about ourselves and about themselves. Management must also satisfy the legitimate needs of three participating partners — its customers, its owners and its employees — and strike a balance that is fair to all three."

This, according, to Mr. May in the company's 1971 annual report, explains "our continuing and expanded efforts in litter and pollution control, our individual and inter-industry participation in projecting the new industry of resource recovery, our enlarged listening posts in government relations, and our preoccupation with the intricate human interactions generally termed public affairs."

The top management at American Cans probes into these areas, not simply for intellectual stimulus, but for guidelines to the successful management of change itself! We relate to this kind of enterprise. No company or institution can stand apart from these conditions without disaster. Change is a fact.

We're all in this ball game together.

Only the flavor and tenderness are different in the lower grades and the cost is usually a bit cheaper. In order of tenderness and flavor, the grades from top to bottom are U. S. Prime, U. S. Choice, U. S. Good and U. S. Standard. U. S. Choice and Good are the grades most often seen in supermarkets. U. S. Prime usually goes to restaurants and lower grades generally go to processors.

LATIN PROBLEMS

The second regular session of the General Assembly of the Organization of American States opens in Washington Tuesday, April 11. Foreign ministers and other representatives of the 23 member-nations will consider a 37-item agenda dealing with political, social and economic problems in the hemisphere and with administrative and budgetary matters affecting OAS operations. The General Assembly will convene three days before Pan American Day on Friday, April 14, marking the founding of the first regional organization in the hemisphere in 1890.

The special relationship between the U. S. and Latin America that led to the founding of the OAS and earlier Pan-American organizations still exists, but it is not the same. "It should surprise no one -- least of all foreign business interests -- that this continent ... is experiencing an upsurge of economic nationalism,' Galo Plaza, Secretary General of the OAS, told a gathering of the nation's governors last fall. Nationalization of large corporations has become so common that most U. S. investors regard it as a calculated business risk.

Latin America is looking for a new deal in trade. Its number one priority is the implementation of generalized tariff preferences which would eliminate tariffs on many manufactured goods produced in the less developed countries. The program would encourage Latin Americans to diversify their economics and ease them out of the unfavorable position of exchanging raw materials for manufactured goods. The U. S. has failed to live up to its promise to implement these tariff preferences. Administration officials blame the delay in submitting the legislation on the current balance of payments crisis and the protectionists sentiment in Congress.

While anxious to reduce or eliminate foreign influence in their countries, Latin American officials recognize the need for outside capital and technology. In response to Latin American desires, foreign assistance increasingly is being channeled through such multilateral organizations as the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank. Latin Americans welcome foreign aid, but they insist on setting their own priorities for its use.

A STEP TOWARD
WORLDWIDE STRIKES

Many unions have the word "international" in their names but are really no more international than the World Series is a world series.

The last decade or so, however, has seen the emergence of truly international business in the form of "multinational" companies which, for some union leaders, have replaced the Taft-Hartley Law as a stock subject for denunciation.

Now, for the first time, two international federations of trade unions are taking on a multinational company on its own terms, reports Chemical & Engineering News.

Officials of the ICF (International Federation of Chemical and General Workers' Unions) and the IUF (International Union for Food and Allied Workers' Associations) have met in Geneva, Switzerland, to chart a plan of action in representing workers in chemicals, foods and beverages and to coordinate such common interests as hours, working conditions, income, health and safety and so on.

The immediate target is W. R. Grace & Co. of New York, but others on the list include such multinational giants as DuPont, Imperial Chemical Industries and Dow.

One of the first things ICF/IUF officials hope to accomplish is to harmonize contract renewal date for workers throughout company — which means throughout the world.

I they are successful, it will raise for the first time in history the possibility of such a thing as a worldwide strike.

"Consumers are saving because they are scared. With unemployment high and business sluggish, we all feel economically insecure, so we save. Obviously, if we cannot induce consumers to provide the push toward recovery, then we must try to stimulate business. Increased business activity should provide jobs for the unemployed. When unemployment drops, consumer confidence will return and consumers will spend again, further stimulating the economy. The key to recovery, therefore, is business, not the consumer." -- Mr. Arch N. Booth, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — The king of the African jungle is footloose in Brazil, entertaining hundreds who pay $5 to mingle with His Majesty in a natural habitat.

Cars lined up for miles on a recent opening Sunday to get a chance to drive through 120,000 square yards of open forest housing 23 free-roaming lions.

The "Simba Safari," lion park, first on this continent, was an instant hit in Latin America's largest city.

The lions are confined only by two 20-foot-high wire fences which encircle the park, but otherwise are free to walk along the 1.8 miles of paved road used by the visitors, or to simply lie in the forest.

"I visited many parks throughout the world," said Francisco "Chico" Galvao, originator of the $180,000 project here.

"This is the eighth. And from what I could gather, ours is the prettiest both in terms of vegetation and geography. The park in the United States is situated in a desert. In the others vegetation is scarce, relying mostly on eucalyptus trees. And there's another thing: This park is the first one in which the lions are put together. In the others they are kept apart."

Galvao and three other Brazilian outdoorsmen and hunters brought the lions to their new home on a 3,400-foot inland plateau on the Tropic of Capricorn. Eventually, 50 lions will occupy the park situated on land purchased from the nearby Sao Paulo Zoo. Most will have been brought from other zoos in Africa or Latin America.

Visitors to the park must ride in cars. They pay the equivalent of just under $1 per person to see the lions from one of the park's zebra-stripped Jeeps or almost $5 to ride through in their own cars. There is no limit on how many persons may be inside.

Car windows must be closed at all times, although the lions appear generally tame and have been trained to become accustomed to cars. Hornblowing is prohibited.

All along the road, park security rangers remain on alert, armed with rifles that shoot anaesthetic pellets in the case of attacks. The pellets can put an attacking lion to sleep without hurting him.

In spite of the obvious need for safety precautions, some visitors were somewhat let down upon learning a littleknown fact: Lions cry.

Samson, Leonard and Simon, the first beasts set free in the park, cuddled up to the closed gates and began crying on their first night of freedom in Brazil.

The reason?

"They got scared," Chico Galvao said. "They began to miss people."

Employers are faced with two special drug abuse problems — not hiring a drug user and what to do with an employee user. Both are equally complex, but sufficiently different to be considered separately. First, the applicant.

Elaborate detection systems, urinalysis, lie detector, tests, police records, and stereotypes have limited value in screening an applicant. They short-circuit good personnel procedures and substitute for common sense. An applicant should be interviewed professionally on qualifications and examined medically. These two functions are related but not exclusively dependent on the other.

One company's pre-employment medical exam provided these observations to its personnel department:

CASE 1 -- Twenty-year old applicant for position of porter used marijuana while in service in Vietnam; accepted from a medical standpoint for this position;

CASE 2 -- Applicant for service station trainee, currently on methadone treatment for past two years; upon receipt of an appropriate certification from the treatment center, applicant employable from a medical standpoint for this position;

CASE 3 -- Applicant for truck driver had been a regular user of heroin, but stated that he had been off the stuff for the past five months; advised rejection of this applicant because of nature of this occupation and lack of treatment certification.

These are one company's guidelines, but not rules. They might be helpful to you in pre-employment situations.

WE THE PEOPLE
LOST THE WAR

If history finds that the United States lost a war for the first time in Vietnam, that war will have been lost by we, the people.

Our military didn't lose it. They won every battle they fought.

And they should have.

We had total control of the air and the sea; we had far superior weapons including that most important weapon of all — the soldier.

The American GI is the best soldier in the world.

Again, he has not lost a war, unless, of course, history finds that we lost the Vietnam war. And even then, the GI didn't lose it.

No, the people lost that war — the people here at home.

And don't think for a minute that we, the civilians in a war, can't lose a war.

Mao said what all top military leaders have said over and over down through history.

In his little red book Mao said:

"Weapons are an important factor in war, but not the decisive factor; it is people, not things, that are decisive. The contest of strength is not only a contest of military and economic power, but also a contest of human power and morale. Military and economic power is necessarily wielded by people."

What happened to the United States in this war is that our leaders made a judgment that our military should not be permitted to go ahead and win the war. Their reason sounded good and, perhaps, was good. Their reason was fear that the Red Chinese would enter the war if we won it by bombing out North Vietnam and closing their one harbor, which of course, our military could have done.

So, instead of winning, we let the war seep along its bloody path for years upon years. Finally, our leaders were unable to keep the people in line any longer. It was then that the anti-war elements grew in strength. Finally, we the people caved in. Our leaders had to pull our troops out as we are now doing.

Maybe we are pulling out with dignity. Maybe the communists will not now be able to take over South Vietnam, and thus, win the war. Maybe...

Meanwhile, the rest of the world is asking a question about us they never asked before:

Have the American people turned soft? Have the American people weakened? Are the American people no longer able to fight and win?

If history is prologue, sooner or later some powerful enemy of the United States will test us — the American people.

...Because, as Mao put it... "People, not things, are decisive..." — Mexico Ledger.

NO TAX MONEY FOR ILLEGAL BILLBOARD
REMOVAL

Monroe Countians, and we believe, most other Missourians, are against the proposal that would allow the use of tax money for removal of billboards that have been illegally erected in violation of Missouri State laws.

Expressions heard locally are to the effect that this would be like paying the expenses of any other criminal whose illegal acts had put him in a place where he would have to incur some expense in order to undo what he had done in violation of a law.

How ridiculous can some of our legislators be?

Whoever heard of using tax dollars to pay a criminal for his illegal acts?

The billboard companies knew they were erecting those signs illegally when they did so.

They should bear the financial consequences. — Paris Appeal.

INSTITUTIONS TO REPLACE FAMILIES?

The defeat of legislation to set up federally-financed "child development" centers for children below school age was a victory for the fanily in our country. Yet the enemies of the family have not yet given up. The attack on the family continues in many different areas.

Recently Roger Freeman, a senior staff member of the Hoover Institution and a former special assistant to President Nixon, made the frightening proposal that children might be better off if taken away from mothers who were receiving welfare and placed in government institutions.

Said Mr. Freeman: "Maybe we should consider whether a child is always best off with his mother, or whether growing-up in a well-run institution may not give it a better chance in life than living under inferior parental care or in a detrimental environment."

The notion that government institutions could provide a better upbringing for children than a family is completely contrary to everything that our country has stood for. For years we have worked to remove children from institutions and put them into homes, yet Mr. Freeman wants to reverse these efforts.

Some people might support these proposals on the grounds that they only affect people receiving welfare. Yet this point of view holds that the government has the right to take children away from their parents and put them into institutions under some circumstances. It would not be long before the government would assume the power to decide whether any parent was fi' to raise his child. Such proposals are perfectly at home in a totalitarian state. They have no place in a free country. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- If the communist offensive should threaten the orderly withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam, President Nixon is prepared to use nuclear weapons against the attackers.

We reported on March 1, 1971, that contingency plans had been drafted for nuclear warfare in Indochina. Competent sources stressed that nuclear weapons would be used only as a last resort if the President concluded there were no other way to save our boys.

We can now report that the contingency plans have been constantly revised and updated. Like pre-written newspaper obituaries, they are ready in case the dwindling U.S. forces should be pushed into a Dunkirk like corner.

The secret plans call for using "nukes" of different magnitude, depending on the targets. "An air blast or a ground blast" might be used, say our sources. This would be determined by how much we wanted to limit the destruction.

Our key sources, for their own protection, have asked us to withhold their identities. But a former sergeant, who worked on the contingency, not only has agreed to let us name him but has offered to testify before Congress on the nuclear targeting.

He is James Walkley, a former Air Force sergeant, who used to work on target planning at Hickman Field in Hawaii. His specialty was Laos.

TARGETING ROOM

The nuclear targeting, he told us, is done in "a special little room. You have to have an SI (Special Intelligence) clearance to get inside."

"I worked with the people, so I knew what they were doing," Walkley said. "With a nuke, you'd have to drop a certain type on a certain type of target."

The plans were constanlty worked over, he said, although it sometimes seemed to him that the Air Force merely "wanted to keep the guys busy."

Walkley said he had provided target information to the nuclear experts, although his main job was targeting conventional bombing.

He could name others who labored over the nuclear contingency plans, he said, but couldn't guarantee they would testify.

Footnote: The former sergeant was kicked out of his top-secret job in 1970 after he became distressed with his target-planning role and began to work against the Vietnam War. He was court martialed but acquitted, and then given an honorable discharge.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Suspicious Travelers -- When Mrs. Helen Hays, a Chinese-American educator, traveled to China for a visit, the FBI began checking into her activities. The agents said it was "routine" for the FBI to look into all Visitors to China who were "suspected of being friendly with Communist China." At about the same time, another American visitor was expressing friendly feelings toward the Chinese Communists. However, the FBI presumably will not investigate President Nixon.

Barbour Cut -- The State Department secretly sought to get Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., to change a statement he made in closed session of a House committee studying the Mideast. Commenting on the abilities of Ambassador to Israel Walworth Barbour, Wolff remarked that "the job may be too much for Mr. Barbour." Disturbed, the State Department tried to get Wolff to soften or eliminate his criticism. But Wolff balked, and the statement will be printed as he gave it.

Laziness Standards -- Officials at a Navy medical dispensary in Norfolk, Va., claim to have found a connection between long hair and laziness. Failure to observe hair standards as spelled out by Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, wrote to dispensary officials, carries connotations of laziness, inattention to details, recalcitrance, or a lack of personal pride, real or affected." Now that's a real advance in scientific knowledge. The logical conclusion is that our longhaired forefathers must have been positively slothful. And most women, to use the Navy's logic, must be lazier than men.

Marks Plan -- Four years ago, Leonard Marks invited the leaders of Peking to send newsmen to the U.S. to cover the 1968 presidential campaign. He was then the U.S. Information Agency chief. Now as a lawyer in private practice, he is renewing the proposal. He believes it would be useful for the Chinese Communists "to see how Americans choose their President." The uncensored Chinese newscasts, he suggests, should be beamed into China on the Voice of America.

Humphrey's Women -- Senator Hubert Humphrey has instructed his campaign staff to "include more and more women in our organizational structure and in our plans." In a confidential memo, he declared: "I will condone no tokenism. In other words, we are not going to have just one woman for display in a top position, or one black or one youth. I believe in the involvement of people on the basis of their ability. And since women have been so selectively excluded not only in government but in industry and academic life, it will be necessary to place extra emphasis upon the appointment and selection of women. The same applies to racial minorities."

WASHINGTON — With the Wisconsin primaries over, a small Congressional committee on Secret Service protection of Presidential candidates will meet and decide who is still viable, how many agents shall be assigned and exactly what their jurisdiction is. But the most viable of all, with the possible exception of Alabama's Gov. George Wallace who will continue to travel with Federal guards, will not be considered because he--Ted Kennedy-- still doesn't want "in."

But in the highest political circles -- and this means Richard Nixon and AFL—CIO George Meany -- the belief is that he is in as certain as the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. In fact, the labor chief is quoted by one intimate as saying positively that "Ted will be on the ticket."

Meany and Mr. Nixon aren't political meteorologists for sensationalist TV weathermen. The two leaders know the political climate, they don't guess. Perhaps the only ambiguous note is Meany's phrase, "on the ticket." Could be he means the 40-year-old Senior Senator from Massachusetts may be talked into taking second place with a centrist to Pied Piper in the youth, the angry black political convention forces, the ultras and those who've never abandoned the Kennedy cult.

But it is certain Ted Kennedy is hitting the road, rounding the speaking circuit and, as he did in an interview last Monday, is less and less sharp in his denials that he'll job into the Presidential race.

His speeches should not be taken out of context. Nor should his audiences. But they are singularly meaningful. For example, on the afternoon of April 25, Ted Kennedy as did his brothers before him, will stand before thousands of cheering delegates at the independent United Auto Workers' 23rd Constitutional Convention in Atlantic City, N.J.

It will be his kind of audience -- left of center, highly politicalized, jammed with young delegates, and scheduled to hear Congress's ultra-leftist and lady infighter, New York's Bella Abzug, farm workers' leader Cesar Chavez, and the last of the Reuther brothers, the most radical of them all, Victor Reuther, in his farewell speech.

For Kennedy, who will talk of national health insurance, the open road then will twist back to Washington as, in the next 60 days, he speaks to legislative conferences here of the United Rubber Workers, the Communications Workers, the United Steelworkers, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and probably the International Union of Electrical Workers -- all militant and politicalized AFL-CIO unions.

In a sense, this is what Bobby Kennedy did. Once when I was lunching with Dick Nixon back in '67, I listened carefully to plain citizen Nixon carefully analyze this strategy:

In effect, Nixon said, Bob Kennedy was putting himself in position to move in and seize the Presidential nomination if anything happened to Lyndon Johnson. Which is exactly what happened.

It was during the few months just before the lethal grimness in the Los Angeles hotel kitchen that President Johnson told George Meany he would fly to the 1968 convention if he thought there was any "danger" that "Bobby" would get the nomination.

I do believe Mr. Johnson and his Texan alter ego, Treasury Secretary John Connally, would move swiftly to shunt Ted Kennedy aside should there be "any danger" of his taking the nomination in Miami Beach. But last time Lyndon Johnson had Meany and the AFL—CIO with him all the way. Meany had his "personal" candidate.. Hubert Humphrey. But today Meany, powerful chief of the only viable pro-Democratic party machine thers is with money and manpower, the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, says he has no candidate.

He's still fond of "Hubert" whom labor feels it could have elected had the '68 campaign run "another three days." But HHH is vintage '68. Meany is reportedly fed up with Ed Muskie because of the Maine Senator's fight against labor's foreign policy the ABM, the SST, the Lockheed loan and the space shuttle, The word is, "We just don't know what happened to Ed. He had it and he lost it; how could we campaign for him?"

So Meany and Co. are not tying themselves to any Democratic candidate in the "yo-yo primaries." They feel there will positively be a conventional deadlock. Some feel that they may yet be able to bargain Washington's Sen. Scoop Jackson into second place. But the feeling in the highest labor circles is that Ted Kennedy will be the only Democrat not "tarnished" by the primaries. And the belief is, in circles which should know firsthand, that Meany feels it will be Kennedy, maybe Kennedy and Jackson, maybe Kennedy and Humphrey, perhaps even Humphrey and Kennedy.

But that Kennedy will be on the ticket there seems to be no doubt in labor headquarters' "Eighth Floor" -- meaning Meany's office.

That's the political weather outlook for today.

Gimmick Helps People Defeat Snake Phobia

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) -- Show a cobra to a person afraid of snakes and he may pass out in fright - but perhaps not, if he's listening to someone else's heartbeat at the time.

Pennsylvania State University researchers say they have developed a psychological gimmick to help people overcome their phobias. The technique involves leading people to believe they are listening to their own heartbeat when they aren't, reports Dr. Robert Stern, associate psychology professor.

"False heartbeats are beginning to be used as a tool in actual therapy to help people get rid of deep - seated fears," said Stern.

In one experiment, students who feared snakes viewed slides of nearly every variety of snake while listening to what they thought were their own hearts amplified through a microphone attached to their chests.

Steele Prison Site Assured, Legislator Says

BRAGG CITY -- Steele now seems assured as the site for Missouri's proposed maximum security prison, according to Vic Downing, state Representative from Bragg City.

Downing said his optimism stems from House and partial Senate approval of an initial $500,000 appropriation for the planned multi- million- dollar penitentiary.

A one- half million dollar allocation for the facility was included in House Bill 14, which has already received approval from the lower chamber and last week received approval from the Senate Appropriations committee.

Downing said that despite opposition to the Steele site from penal and judicial quarters in St. Louis and Kansas City, he believes that with the approval of this appropriation and with the work that has already been done, the legislature will support the prison at Steele. He said another factor that has helped is the approval by the people of Steele of the issuance of bonds to provide money to meet their obligations in the project.

Downing met last week with W. G. Miller, newly-appointed director of the Missouri Department of Corrections, to determine Miller's views on the Steele site. The Pemiscot County legislator quoted Miller as saying he still favored the site and considers a security prison "a must for the state of Missouri."

As to when the proposed prison facility can be built, Downing explained that funds for the unit are included in a proposed $260 million state-wide bond issue. The proposal, which will be submitted to the voters if it receives approval from the General Assembly, has passed the House of Representatives and is pending before the state Senate.

Although originally pegged as a $5 million project, the cost of the maximum security unit has gradually been increased, with latest estimates ranging from $10 to $12 million.

What's The Law

Shopkeeper Must Conform To Time

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The only way Hubert ever killed time was to work it to death. A determined and industrious shopkeeper, he tried never to lose a moment of productive effort. Consequently, when a law was passed directing that only standard time be used in his area, he ignored it completely. And, at the appointed hour moved the hands of the big clock in his store window ahead one revolution, as he had done in previous years, and went on Daylight Savings Time.

Instead of saving time, however, Hubert found himself confronted with the possibility of having to serve time. He was arrested for ignoring and violating the law.

"This is America," he protested in his defense. "The home of the free and the brave. And, if a man can't operate his business under any time system he deems most beneficial, he isn't free. Consequently, the time law is un-American and unconstitutional."

"That's absurd," retorted the district attorney. "There's nothing wrong with the law, only with Hubert. He wants to be a nonconformist. If time were permitted to be different for everyone, there'd be more confusion than in Alice in Wonderland and we'd all be Mad Hatters."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE' would you jail Hubert for refusing to operate on standard time?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a state may pass laws that are deemed necessary for the safety, health, morals, etc. of its people. The standardizing of time, noted the judge, is reasonably necessary since the use of different time standards would lead to obvious confusion. (Based upon a 1957 Tennessee Supreme Court Decision)

Case Dismissal Overwhelms Both Client, Attorney

KANSAS CITY AP — City Magistrate Bernard W. Gnefkow reached an overwhelming decision here Wednesday.

He dismissed the case against a 250-pound woman in a preliminary hearing on a bad check charge.

The woman, in her mid 40s, jumped from her seat at the counsel table, uttered a cry of joy and fainted.

Her 140-pound attorney tried to catch her on the way down, but failed. Both ended on the floor in a heap.

The woman regained consciousness after a few minutes and regained her feet, thanking the magistrate for his ruling.

"What I'd like to know," Gnefkow said, "is what you would have done if I had found you guilty."

Almost 11.4 million acres of forest cover three-fourths of West Virginia's total land area.

Cancer Kick Off Banquet Scheduled For Monday

Mrs. James Allen

Mrs. James E. Allen, of Cape Girardeau, one of the more than 2 million volunteers of the American Cancer Society, who will work in the April Cancer Crusade, will speak at the Monday night kick off event of Scott County at the Ramada Inn.

Mrs. Allen has been a volunteer with the Cape Girardeau County Unit of the Society 17 years and is serving on the unit's board of directors and is memorial gift fund program chairman in her county and division chairman of the program in Missouri. Mrs. Allen is a member of the Missouri division crusade committee for the Society.

A former Scott Countian, Mrs. Allen was born and reared in Morley, daughter of the late Jesse and Viola Brasher. She is a member of the Cape Girardeau First Baptist Church and the Girardot Chapter of the National Secretaries Association and is employed as secretary at Guth Bros. Block and Brick Company in Cape Girardeau. Her husband, James E. Allen, is coach and teacher in the Cape Girardeau public school system.

"Cancer knows no boundaries," Mrs. Allen said, "It is not a problem only in Scott County and Cape Girardeau County, or is it a problem only in Missouri and our nation, cancer is a world-wide problem and affects the lives of our friends, neighbors, co-workers and associates. Many of us have experienced it in our own families.

"As volunteers, we must alert others to the hopeful side of this problem. Although total victory over cancer still eludes our scientists, great strides are geing made in the field of research. About one in four Americans, according to present rates, will eventually have cancer. One out of three patients is now being saved. Yet the figure could be one out of two if more people would see their physicians in time for early diagnosis and treatment. 1,400,000 Americans are alive today, cured of cancer, many more people can be saved if they can be persuaded to see their doctors in time."

This is the message crusade volunteers will take to each home in Scott County during April as they give Scott Countians the opportunity to join the Fight Against Cancer by making their annual contribution to the April Crusade.

The public is invited to attend. For reservations call 471-2850.

Biology Teacher Has Facts Wrong

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our biology teacher made a statement yesterday that sounded very strange to say the least. He said if it was absolutely necessary, a father could nurse his children. A few of us told him we couldn't understand how this was possible. He assured us it could be done. Is he right? — Curious at Mt. Abe

Dear Curious: Dr. Rodney Jamieson, Chicago internist and staff member of Presbyterian - St. Luke's Hospital is the medical authority for the following statement: "No way. Unless the father holds the bottle."

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 17-year-old daughter who will be going to college next year. After visiting twelve institutions of higher learning in the East, we found the same story everywhere — beautiful campuses, impressive buildings, lovely landscaping — and crummy looking students. Dirty unisex clothing; unshaven, mop-haired males; slobby, braless girls in shawls, jeans, sandals and faded hip-huggers.

Am I crazy because I don't buy that bit about "it's what's inside that counts?" It seems to me what's outside has some relation to what's inside. Manners and decent language appear to be a thing of the past, too.

These kids don't realize that many colleges and universities could not survive if it weren't for the endownment of the older generation who have given freely of their funds. I'm sure many alumni would turn over in their graves if they could get a glimpse of the students on most campuses today. Sign me — Establishment Square

Dear Es: There is no rational defense for personal neglect, dirt, bad manners or foul language. And there's no denying it — it's more prevalent both off and on campuses than it used to be. But there is also less hypocrisy, and a stronger commitments to higher ideals. A generation that is against the Vietnam war, outspoken in behalf of equal opportunities for minority groups, dedicated to fighting pollution and saving our environment can't be all bad.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I married for the second time. Both my wife and I had children from previous marriages. Our troubles can all be traced to my wife's kids who behave like animals. We also have a difficult time with her ex-husband who is a crackpot. He bribes the kids with glamorous vacations, fancy camps and expensive schools. If they disagree with him he threatens to stop paying for their psychiatric sessions. This plunges them into a state of anxiety and depression.

When I try to discipline the children they tell their father I am a sadist and he encourages them to run away from home. This upsets their mother terribly and she blames me for being too hard on them.

Frankly I think my wife should hand these kids over to their father and let them drive HIM crazy. She says she will never give them up and if she must choose between them and me, she'll have to choose them. Is there any way to keep my marriage from falling apart? — I Really Care

Dear Care: If you and your wife have not had joint counseling, I recommend it. Ask the doctor who is seeing the children to suggest someone who can help you resolve your internal problems so you can function as parents. Those kids have you both over a barrel and they know it.

Is pot a drug? Can L.S.D. and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 16 cents postage to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Supreme Court To Be Asked For Parochial Aid Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court wil be asked to define how government can support church-run schools, but President Nixon may come up with his own solution first.

Nixon went to Philadelphia Thursday to strengthen his pledge to develop an "equitable, workable and constitutional" method to funnel government dollars into nonpublic schools.

In the same city a few hours later, a three-judge federal court struck down a sevenmonth-old Pennsylvania law which sent nonpublic school aid to parents, rather than to the schools. The law was the result of specific efforts to tailor provisions to earlier Supreme Court guidelines.

John Cardinal Krol, archbishop of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic Archdiocese, said the ruling would be appealed to the Supreme Court, which held last June that some forms of government aid to church schools are constitutional.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote that "the crucial question is not whether some benefit accrues to a religious institution as a consequence of the legislative program, but whether its principal or primary effect advances religion."

The primary effect of the Pennsylvania law was to advance religion, said the decision Thursday by federal Appeals Court Judge William Hastie and District Court Judges Joseph S. Lord and John B. Hannum.

"The state has no more power to subsidize parents in providing a religious education for their child than it has to subsidize church-related schools to do so," the judges wrote.

Nixon took note of the constitutional tightrope in a speech to a Catholic educators' group in Philadelphia.

"We are all aware of the very grave constitutional questions which have arisen in the past, each time the states or the federal government have undertaken to provide aid to nonpublic schools," he said.

Nixon promised "specific measures designed to preserve the nonpublic school system in the United States" after the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and the presidential Commission on School Finance complete studies.

The Pennsylvania law authorized $47 million a year to reimburse parents for tuition at 1,500 nonpublic schools, all but 250 of them Catholic.

Meanwhile, the dispute over parochial aid continues in state legislatures and courts.

There are 32 pending lawsuits which either challenge or seek public funds for church-related schools, according to the American Jewish Congress.

The National Catholic Education Association said last fall that 19 states either have passed or were considering legislation to help parochial schools.

This week's Uniform INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

For April 9, 1972

SCRIPTURE:

Matthew 18:19-20;
John 4:19-24;
Acts 2:41-47;
Colossians 3:14-17

(Based on outlines prepared by the Department of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission.)

THE CHURCH: A WORSHIPPING COMMUNITY

Worship is a thirsty land crying out for rain, a candle in the act of being kindled, a voice in the night calling for help, and a man climbing the altar stairs to God.

When Dwight Bradley sought to explain "What Is Worship?" He realized there were many unanswered questions.

What do we do when we worship? What happens to us when we worship? What ought to happen? How should we be changed?

In a review Deuteronomy one becomes aware of the change in worship as he reads the Old and New Testaments. The negative approach placed stress on idols, on elaborate procedures, on formal rituals.

Missed were some of the essential elements of worship as revealed by Jesus. Worship should be joyful: it should recognize God in words and music. But it need not be centered primarily in the Temple in Jerusalem as it once was. No longer does the believer have to travel to one city to offer his sacrifice.

"Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them," Jesus told his followers.

Worship should be a natural part of the church. Here Jesus promises that "if two of you agree on earth about anything they ask, it will be done for them by my Father in Heaven."

Jesus also offered to hear our prayers in secret behind closed doors. Yet strength can be gained through congregational prayers with others.

One should attend worship services to secure access to God and to discover means of moral regeneration. Unfortunately, too many persons attend services to be seen by others.

Yet contact with God need not be made in formal services. Our home could be a church where we can feel God's blessing. God comes to us daily when we let him.

Some will ask "What is the church?" Luke places emphasis on prayer and on the breaking of bread together. It can be a formality that becomes a habit. It can also be a place of final resort, a place to go for help.

Our Scripture readings assure us that God responds to sincere worship. He reveals Himself to the worshipping community through the Bible, the sacraments, prayer, hymns, and fellowship.

Prayer, if really sincere will affect one's life. We get in focus with God, with all the doors open.

Some uneasiness exists today between young persons and the older generation over the means of worship. Some persons prefer the traditional, formal rituals in use for so many years.

Others seek a more informal approach, with the use of contemporary folk songs and informal prayers and sermons.

Considerable sentiment exists now over the school prayer bill. Should prayers be permitted in schools? Should they be required? Should they be denied? Church leaders are conservative and some are liberal in many ways.

Religion has in recent years become a more openly discussed topic. It has become front-page news in many newspapers. It has forced many persons to think more about a subject they for years took for granted.

Prayer too often is taken for granted.

William Temple has summarized today's lesson rather well. "This world can be saved from political chaos and collapse by only one thing. worship to quicken the conscience by the holiness of God, to feed the mind with the truth of God, to devote the will to the purpose of God."

Methodists Get Interim Pastor

Rev. Ralph Dodson

The Rev. E. W. Bartley, district superintendent of United Methodist churches in the Sikeston - Poplar Bluff district, has announced the appointment of the Rev. Ralph H. Dodson of Dexter as interim pastor of First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North to serve until the meeting of the annual conference in June.

The appointment was made to fill the vacancy created by the death March 6 of the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, who had been pastor seven years.

The Rev. Mr. Dodson is a member of the faculty at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, teaching sociology.

He is a native of Scott County and attended high school in Morley. He began his teaching career at the Greer school, three miles west of Sikeston. He is a member of the Detroit conference of the United Methodist Church. He is now retired, having served 42 years under the appointment of the church.

The Rev. Mr. Dodson has served as registrar and direcor of personnel of Martin College in Pulaski, Tenn.; president of John Wesley College in Greensboro, N.C.; dean of Davaou Bible College in Davaou City in the Phillipines; pastor of the United Methodist church in Davaou City; and has conducted evangelistic crusades in Hong Kong, Formosa, Japan and Korea. He and his wife also taught in a mission school — Japan Christian Academy -- in Tokyo.

He and his wife, the former Birdie Louise Crawford of Dexter, have two sons and a daughter. One son, Edwin, is a lawyer in Phoenix, and the other son, Edmond is first vice president in the Metropolitan National Bank in Farmington, Mich. The daughter, Esther Janes, is married and lives in Owosso, Mich. They have eight grandchildren.

Vacation School Plans Set

Plans for Sikeston's first interdenominational vacation church school are being completed by four participating churches, First United Methodist, Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian, St. Francis Xavier Catholic and First Christian.

The school will be at First Methodist church on highway 61 north and will begin June 5. Present plans involve a five- day program from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. each day.

Mrs. Judy Harris will direct the school for kindergarten, through junior high.

Bad Check Alert System Formed

The Chambers of Commerce of Malden, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Kennett are forming a Red Alert system to notify their members of any illegal checks and or money orders being passed in the area and the use of lost or stolen credit cards.

When the procedure is followed, each Chamber of Commerce member in Southeast Missouri will have been notified of the particulars by direct phone call. Details are described as follows:

A merchant in Sikeston receives a bad check or money order. He will notify the police, as always. Sikeston police will place the information on their band and notify the Chamber.

The Sikeston Chamber of Commerce, as a back- up, notifies the Poplar Bluff Chamber of Commerce. The Poplar Bluff police will confirm this report. Poplar Bluff will notify other cities within the chain.

This same procedure will be followed until all cities south of Sikeston are notified. When the Red Alert is received in the Chamber office, the Chamber will notify from five to ten members of the RedAlert (this number will depend upon members who desire to participate in this program when the final charts are drawn up). These members will then notify two other members (approximately two minutes of actual time on the phone); these two members will then call two members each.

In conclusion, by each member making only two phone calls, the members of the Malden Chamber of Commerce can and will be well informed of any bad checks, money orders or credit cards being passed in Southeast Missouri.

Red Alert, 3x5, descriptive cards will be furnished by the Chamber for records. It can only fail if one member of the Chambrer does not make the assigned phone calls. This method has proved successful in numerous cities.

Those interested in participating should contact O. D. Clayton, at the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce.

Bradley Won't Run This Year

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Bradley of the New York Knicks announced today that he has decided not to seek a political office in Missouri this year.

Bradley, who had been expected to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer, told a news conference that he felt there was too little time before the August primary to mount "the type of issue-oriented campaign I feel is necessary and desirable."

Bradley also noted that he had been approached about running for Congress from the 4th District in New York but said, "I am not interested and never have been."

Bradley said he will campaign actively this fall for Democratic candidates in Missouri. He said he has made no decision about playing pro basketball next year, but added:

"I probably will play basketball no longer than one more year."

The 28-year-old Bradley maintains a residence in Crystal City, Mo., just southwest of St. Louis. He was an Al-America basketball star at Princeton University and attended Oxford University in England on a Rhodes scholarship.

Although he won't run for office this year, Bradley indicated he would be interested in Missouri politics in the future.

chief of detectives in Paducah, contacted Stoddard County authorities Wednesday night, and County Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee and Highway Patrolmen Jack Pritchard and N. F. Mobley then went to Paducah for information.

Records on Mahan indicate convictions dating as far back as 1932. He was convicted of bank robbery at that time and was sentenced to five years in the Eddyville, Ky., prison.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1935 for robbery in Kentucky, and again in 1955, also for armed robbery.

During 1970 Mahan was charged with possession of narcotics with intent to sell.

Mahan apparently was unmarried. His address is listed as 807 North 21st St., Paducah.

Coroner Rainey was given names of a brother, Ralph Mahan of Munster, Ind., and a nephew, Billy Mason of Montgomery. The family has been notified.

Rainey said he assumes someone will come to make positive identification.

The body is at the Rainey Funeral Home.

Two New Councilmen Sworn In

EAST PRAIRIE — City Clerk Webb DeField administered oaths of office to Jones Hedge and W. E. Moss, councilmen elected in Tuesday's election, at last night's meeting of the city council.

Lloyd Hogan was re-elected by the council to serve a one- year term as mayor, and Moss was elected to serve a one- year term as vice mayor. Joining the council as youth members were Kevin Hutcheson and Kathie Simpkins.

The council approved four recommendations from the park and recreation committee. The Lion's Club will be permitted to use the H. A. Jones Park, outside the fenced-in perimeter of the baseball diamond, for a carnival, providing the club will be responsible for any damages to the park.

The area can be used for a circus sponsored by the fire department under the same conditions.

The baseball field will be open during the summer from 8 a.m. until conclusion of scheduled night games, providing the city can get adult supervision and scheduling.

Also approved was the committee's recommendation that the park's light meter be listed in the city's name, and the bill be paid by pro- rating the cost between the teams playing under the lights.

The council tabled a recommendation from the committee that swimming time at the city pool be divided into two 3-hour sessions, and the pool be emptied between sessions.

The council canvassed and approved Tuesday's election returns, approved collector's report, showing a total of 17,251.52 collected and payment of $7,784.58 expenditures.

Police judge report for March showed a total of $372 assessed fines. Of this amount, $276 was collected and the difference worked out on city streets.

A letter of resignation from a city planning commission member, Harrison Brack, was accepted. The council named Roy Hilton to the post.

Sen. Curtis Compares Beef, Cattle Prices With Those Of 20 Years Ago

HASTINGS, Neb. — Cattle feeders around Hastings were getting a little less for fed steers and heifers back in January of 1952 than they were in mid-February this year, but today's retail beef prices are about twice as high as they were then.

PATRONS OF THE NEW MADRID COUNTY R-1 ENLARGED SCHOOL DISTRICT.

The School election is over, and we have lost- the seat on the Board that is. It would only be sour grapes to describe how it was lost- so we shall not attempt to do so here.

What is proper here is to thank all of you who rallied to this cause, who came to the polls in sufficient numbers, and who refused to be gagged or blinded folded.

It is difficult not to be disillusioned at this time, but there must be no rancor or bitterness for this too is blinding. Our only apology goes to that host of young people who joined our cause and worked so hard in this their first venture only to taste the salt of defeat. We could remind our young friends, you have lost the battle but not the war and time is on your side.

Our heartfelt appreciation to all who did their very best.

PAUL E. (JACK) MAHAR

POWER HITTING JIM SAULTERS (19) AND SPEEDSTER GREG COLWICK (53) were victims of a strong left handed pitcher Thursday afternoon as the Sikeston high school baseball team played its first complete game of the spring ... a 10-1 loss to Cape Girardeau Central. John Johnson masted a three-hitter at the Bulldogs and stymied the two sophomore Bulldogs stars with no hits.

MONTREAL (AP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau revealed a concept Thursday night for a 50,000-seat partially-covered stadium for this city when it is host to the 1976 Summer Olympics.

An additional 20,000 seats would be added for Olympic events. The giant stadium, which will have a tent-like membrane structure that folds down over the exposed playing area, is designed to be used four seasons of the year.

OAKLAND (AP) — Paul Roach, 43, has been hired as offensive backfield coach of the Oakland Raiders. He will join the National Football League team after two seasons as backfield coach at the University of Wisconsin.

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Stan Smith, of Sea Pines, S.C., the No. 1 ranked player in the United States, strengthened his lead in the round robin Caribe Hilton Tennis Tournament Thursday night. Johnson Masters Bulldogs

The Cape Girardeau Central Tigers drubbed the sophomore laden Sikeston Bulldogs at VFW Stadium Thursday afternoon, 10-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Jim Johnson.

Sophomore Richard Blankenship started on the mound for the Bulldogs but was unable to hold the hard hitting Tigers at bay. He was touched for four runs in the first inning. The Bulldogs were never in the game after that.

Sikeston made an effort to score in the first inning but Johnson was a little too much for the young diamond crew of coach N. P. McDaniel.

Coach McDaniel started seven sophomores and one freshman. The bulk of last year's starting nine graduated. The youngsters are most of the athletes, who won the Junior Babe Ruth state title and placed second in the Midwest Plains regional.

Cape Girardeau Central scored its fifth run in the third and added three runs in the sixth and four more in the top of the seventh. The pitching staff of the Bulldogs was unable to contain the Tigers.

Mike Volkerding slashed a wind assisted homer to cap the Bengals seventh inning scoring.

Sixteen players for the Bulldogs saw action.

Sikeston made three previous attempts to play games but either darkness or rain had halted the games. Cape Central is 2-0 for the season in SEMO conference play and the Bulldogs are 0-1.

Coach McDaniel pointed out that veteran Eddie McDowell would be starting against the Tigers next time they meet.

Big Red Lose $40,000 Suit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fomer defensive tackle Luke Owens of the St. Louis Cardinals has been awarded $40,000 in a breach of contract suit against the team.

Owens was a member of the National Football League club for seven years. In 1963 he won the Cardinals' Most Valuable Player award.

The circuit court suit claimed Owens had been released by the Cardinals because of heart tests conducted in training camp in 1956. Oens' attorney Marshall Friedman contended the heart problem had existed since 1963, and, therefore, the club had forfeited the right to base the release on physical condition.

The jury in the court of Judge Michael Scott deliberated only 40 minutes before awarding the judgment to Owens Thursday.

The $40,000 was based on the fact that Owens was playing under a two-year, $20,000-a-year contract when released.

Lions Roar Loud In Opener, 18-2

SENATH -- The Senath - Hornersville Lions opened their baseball season to annilate the Holcomb Hornets after four and a half innings of baseball play when it was called due to the ten-run rule, with the score 18-2.

Two triples by Greg Gillette and one by David Tinnin served to advance the Lions' attack. Gillette was Senath's hitting star connecting for three of the total nine. Tinnin was also in the spotlight with four runs batted in.

The combined efforts of Pitchers Paul Davis and Kent Waggoner held the Hornets to three hits. Davis showed good control in pitching the first three innings, giving up only one hit and striking out four. Waggoner finished the game with a record of 10 strikeouts and walked eight.

Mike Sims and Bill Cantrell were credited with striking out two men each as they divided the pitching honors for the Hornets. Sims also connected for two of the total hits of the Hornets, batting in the two runs in the last inning to become the star of the game.

Kuhlmann Joins GB Staff

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Mizzour coach Al Onofrio confirmed today that Henry (Hank) Kuhlmann, a Tiger assistant football coach, had accepted a new position with the Green Bay Packers professional team.

In a news story out of Green Bay, the 35- year- old Kuhlmann was designated as the team's "special teams' coach". It is a newly-created coaching specialty, a Packer spokesman said.

Onofrio indicated that he has a successor for Kuhlmann in mind who would be named "in the near future". The Webster Groves, Mo. native has completed nine years on the Bengal staff.

"Hank has made a real contribution to Missouri football as a player coach and recruiter," Onofrio said. "He is a very loyal and conscientious person -- and I am happy for him that he has this fine opportunity to advance himself professionally."

At Green Bay, Kuhlmann will be rejoining his former coach and boss, Dan Devine. Hank was a senior tailback on Devine's first Tiger team in 1958. He was hired by Devine as a graduate assistant in 1962, and became a fulltimes staff member a year later.

"I kinda hate to leave right now ... Missouri football has meant a lot to me. We've had a great recruiting year – and the future looks so promising," Kuhlmann said, adding:

"But this is a promotion that will help broaden me as a coach -- and I couldn't turn it down."

Kuhlmann was one of four backs from Webster Groves high, recruited by the Tigers in 1955 when Coach Don Faurot signed the entire backfield which included Glen St. Pierre, Charlie James and Joe Heimlicher.

When To Run?

WARRENTON -- It takes a while, but sooner or later a conservation agent learns when to run and when not to.

"Everyone has heard about the game warden that went to check two hunters," says Art Johnson, Warren County conservation agent. "One ran and the warden went after him, only to find that he was the one with the hunting permit while the guy that stayed behind (and vanished) didn't have one."

Johnson had two different instances in January when one hunter of a party ran and the others didn't. In both cases, he checked the stay- at- homes, then followed the runner.

In both cases, the runners didn't have hunting permits. In both cases, the runners had excuses. One said, "Well, I want to become a conservation agent and I was afraid if I got a ticket, it would hurt my chances."

Right. The other excuse was more direct: "Frankly, I didn't think you could catch me."

But Johnson did and it cost each $10 and costs.

Bloomfield Trips Bell City, 3-2

BELL CITY — The Bloomfield Wildcats edged the Cubs, 3-2, Thursday afternoon in a Stoddard County conference baseball game.

Geroge Baldwin allowed four hits, struck out 10 and walked five enroute to victory. Henson took the loss for the Cubs.

The Cubs started the scoring with a run in the first inning but the Wildcats came right back and tied the score in the second with a run.

Bloomfield took the lead for good in the third inning with two runs. The Cubs made an attempt to come back in the last inning but the rally fell short by one run.

Charles Tucker of the Wildcats batted in two runs with a double for the game's only extra base hit.

Berra Named Manager

NEW YORK (AP) — If and when the baseball season gets under way, Yogi Berra will manage the New York Mets and Rusty Staub will be in right field.

Less than four hours after the body of Gil Hodges was buried Thursday [in his beloved Brooklyn, the Mets named Berra, who won the 1964 American League pennant with the New York Yankees in his only previous managerial experience, to replace him.

At the same time, they announced the acquisition of the hard-hitting Staub from the Montreal Expos in a 3-for-1 deal. The Mets gave up outfielder Ken Singleton, first baseman-outfielder Mike Jorgensen and infielder Tom Foli, all young players and all expected to be regulars for the Expos.

The Staub deal was consumated last weekend and General Manager Bob Scheffing said it would have been announced Sunday but for the baseball strike. To add to the confusion, Hodges collapsed and died of a heart attack late Sunday afternoon.

"We just couldn't sit on it any longer," Scheffing said when asked why the dual announcement was made the day of Hodges' funeral. "It even leaked out today. The Associated Press had it before we announced it. We were lucky to sit on it this long."

The naming of Berra, who will be 47 next month, as manager climaxes an unusual career for the Hall of Fame catcher that saw him star for 17 years with the crosstown Yankees and manage them for one season, only to be fired after losing the 1964 World Seriesto the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games. He has been the Mets' first base coach ever since.

Berra was passed over twice previously by the Mets—in 1965, when Casey Stengel broke his hip and was succeeded by Wes Westrum, and in 1968, when Westrum gave way to Hodges.

"We left a good man today," Berra, still wearing his dark blue funeral suit, said, referring to Hodges. "I hope I can fill his shoes, that's all."

The Mets also got a good man in the 28-year-old Staub, who hit .311 with 19 home runs and 97 runs batted in for Montreal last season.

Singleton, 24, hit .245 for the Mets last year with 13 homers and 45 RBI. Jorgensen batted .220 with five homers and 11 RBI in a half-season with the Mets after hitting .342 with 15 homers and 41 RBI in the International League. Foli had a .226 average with the Mets with no homers and 24 RBI. All three are considered good prospects.

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Marcos Jimenez, "El Paperito" of Paraguay, scored a technical knockout over France's Paul Rourre in the fourth round of scheduled eight-round lightweight boxing match at Bilbao's Sports Pavilion Thursday night.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Permatex 200, a late-model stock car race, has been set for April 22 at Fairground Speedways.

Gardner Masters Clarkton, 9-4

HAYTI -- The Indians soundly whipped the Clarkton Reindeer Thursday afternoon, 9-4, in a non-conference baseball game.

Randy Gardner allowed only three hits and was backed by a 12-hit attack by the Indians. Dennis Duffel started on the mound for the Reindeer and took the loss. Gardner struck out 15 batters.

The game was highlighted by a triple play by the Clarkton defense, which also pulled off three double plays.

Hayti took the lead in the first inning scoring two runs. Clarkton came back in the third inning to score four runs but Hayti took the lead for good in the fourth by plating three more runs to lead 5-4. The Indians added insurance runs in the sixth and seventh.

Morgan, Mixie, and Booth had three hits apiece to lead the Hayti offense. Delong collected two of the three hits by Clarkton.
